Spirit—

A sweet burning in the corner of your soul
That one day creeps out
To set your world on fire . . .

The red ribbon on a package
Of excitement . . .

The thread that sews all feelings
Into one great lightning streak . . .

Hope bursting from despair;

Electric air;

And laughter,

Inside and out.

In Appreciation

As a representative of the entire student body, I wish to express our appreciation to you, the faculty, for all the time and effort you have contributed in order to provide us with an outstanding extra-curricular program. We feel that the opportunity to know you outside of the formality of the classroom has enriched our education and stimulated us to work toward higher goals.

As coaches you have always upheld good sportsmanship, and under your direction we have learned to work as a team. As club advisors you have promoted our interest in areas not covered in the classroom and have helped us develop our talents and creativity. Under your guidance we have set high goals and now work toward them with purposefulness.

Through these cooperative activities, a unique kind of spirit exists in our school—a spirit of mutual appreciation and genuine friendship between teachers and students.

For the challenges with which you have confronted us and for the guidance you have offered in helping us to accept these challenges, we thank you.

Sincerely,

W. Corey Rich III

French Club Enhances Studies

MARTHA C. VICENZI
French
B.A., Douglass College

One of the school's largest and most active clubs is that of the French students. The club, under the direction of Mme. Vicenzi, enriches the French course by promoting interest in French culture. The members donate dues at each meeting in order to buy a gift for the French Department, indicating their gratitude and appreciation.

Catchy French tunes and brisk, lively conversation drift out of Room 101 during the friendly meetings of "Le Cercle Francais." Colored slides of the recent European tours provide both culture and enjoyment. To end the year on a gay, interesting note, the members take an exciting trip and spend a completely "French" day.

JUNE L. RICHEY
French
B.A., Bucknell University

In order to acquaint students with the French Achievement Test, the French College Board Club is organized. Aided by Mme. Richey, the pupils review vocabulary, grammar and comprehension, resulting in full preparation for the exam.

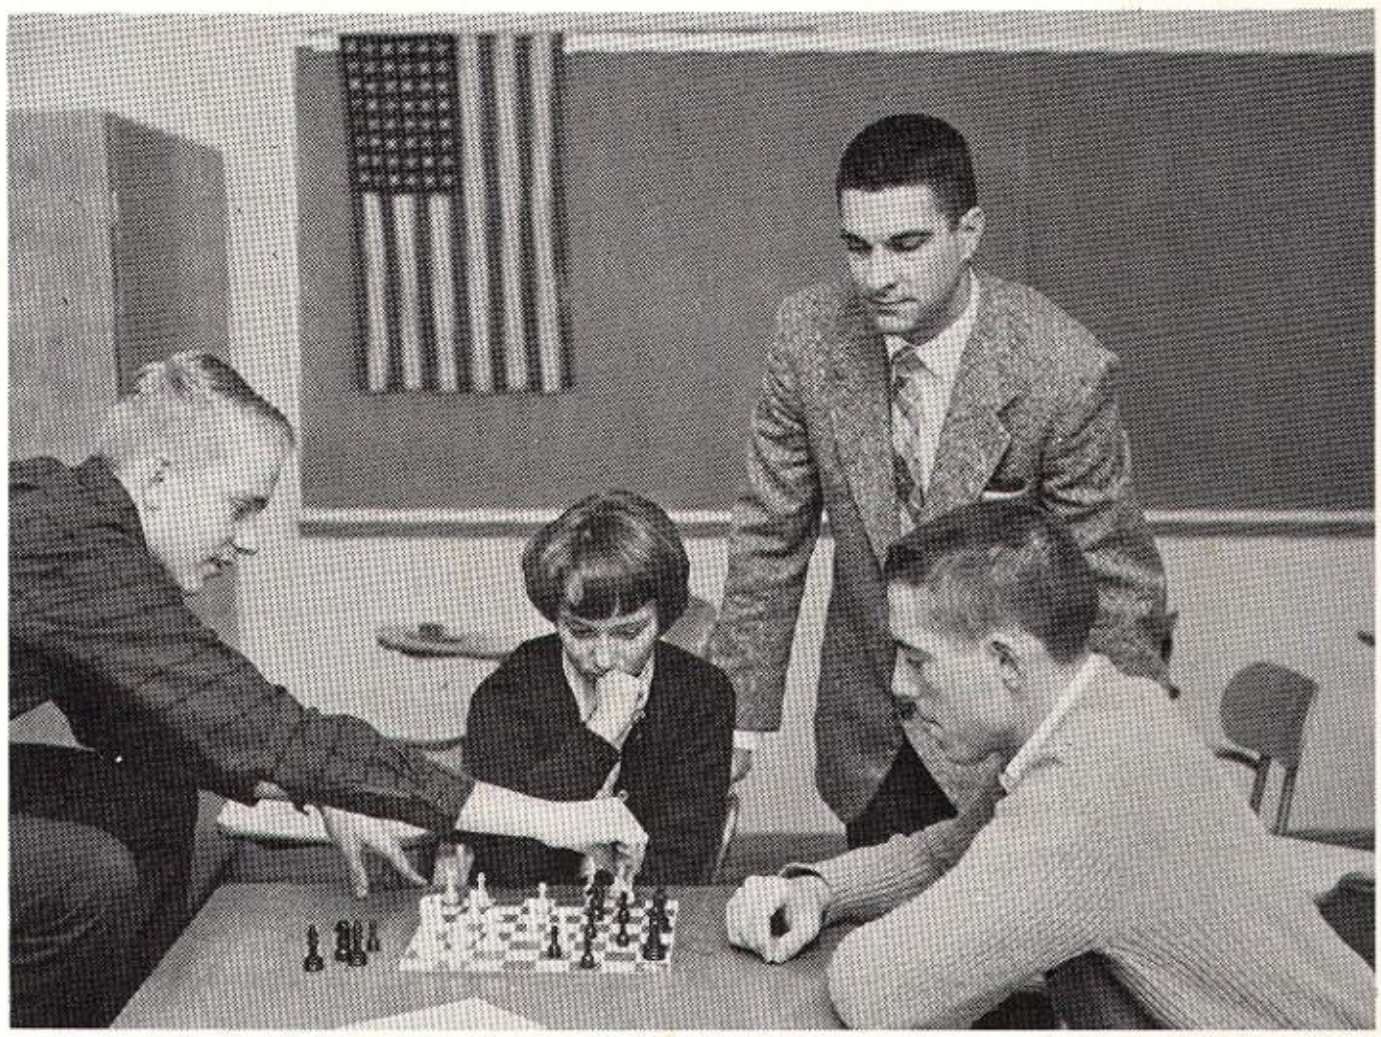
Language Clubs Stimulate

ELENA G. PATTERSON
Spanish
B.A., M.A., D.Ed.
University of Havana

Eager to know more about the lives of the people whose languages they are studying, interested students meet together. Films, records and guest speakers add to their understanding of the varied foreign cultures. Roman togas, tapes of German hit-tunes and decorative Spanish piñatas add to the gaiety of the holidays as club members celebrate customs native to these countries.

Meeting weekly, members of the Spanish Club enjoy watching films of Spanish-speaking countries, hearing guest speakers and presenting skits in español. With their club advisor, Mrs. Patterson, they take a trip to increase their knowledge of Spanish life.

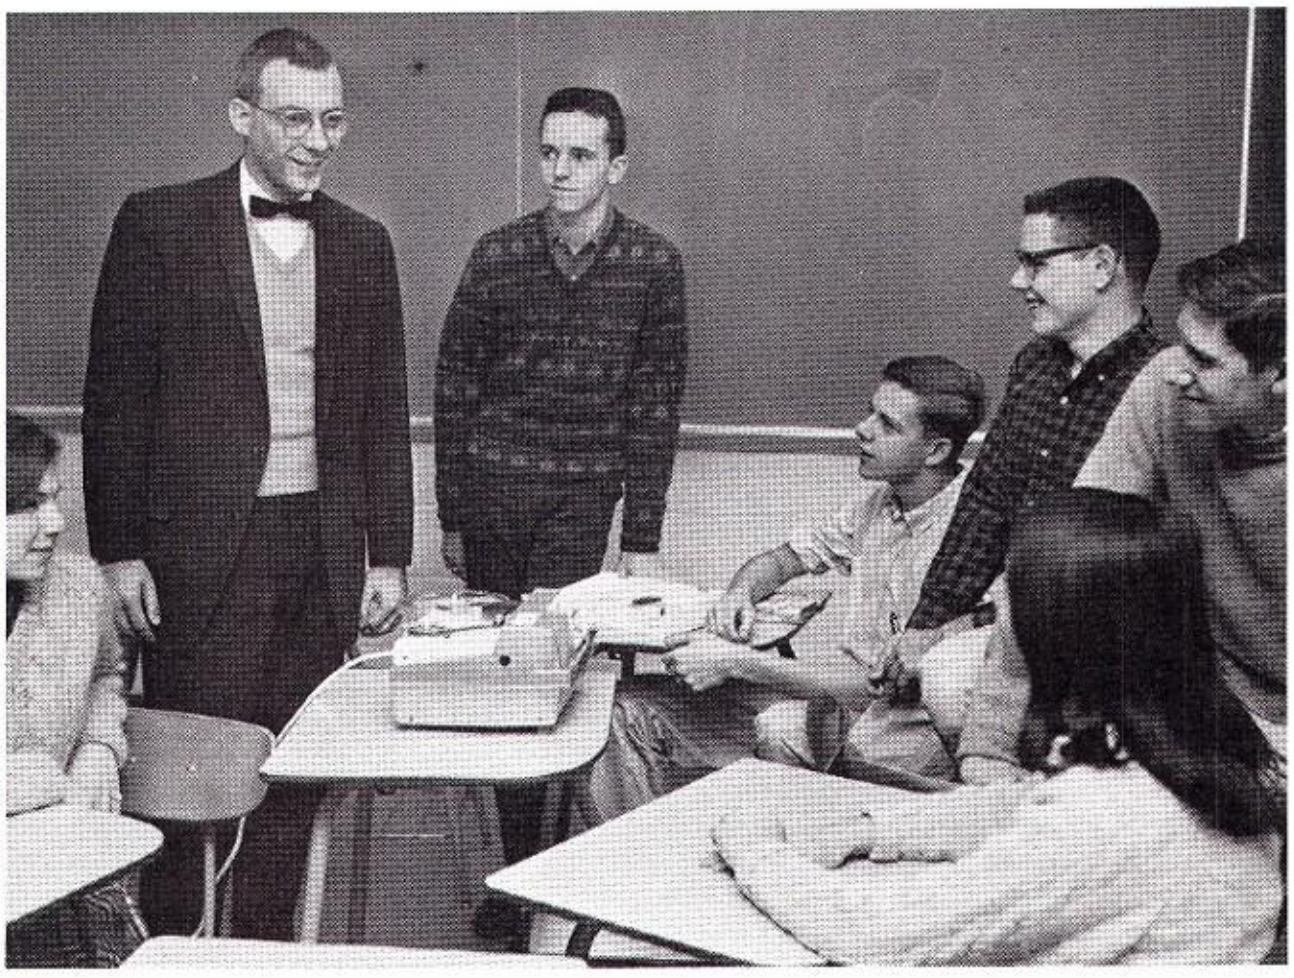
ALEX P. KOHARSKI
Spanish
B.S., Bloomsburg State College
M.A., Rutgers University



Organized for the first time this year, the Chess Club has become very popular. It is open to any school members who wish to learn the game of chess, as well as to those enthusiasts who wish to improve their skills. Supervised by Mr. Koharski, the members play intramurally and also against other schools. A tournament is held in the spring in which all club members participate.

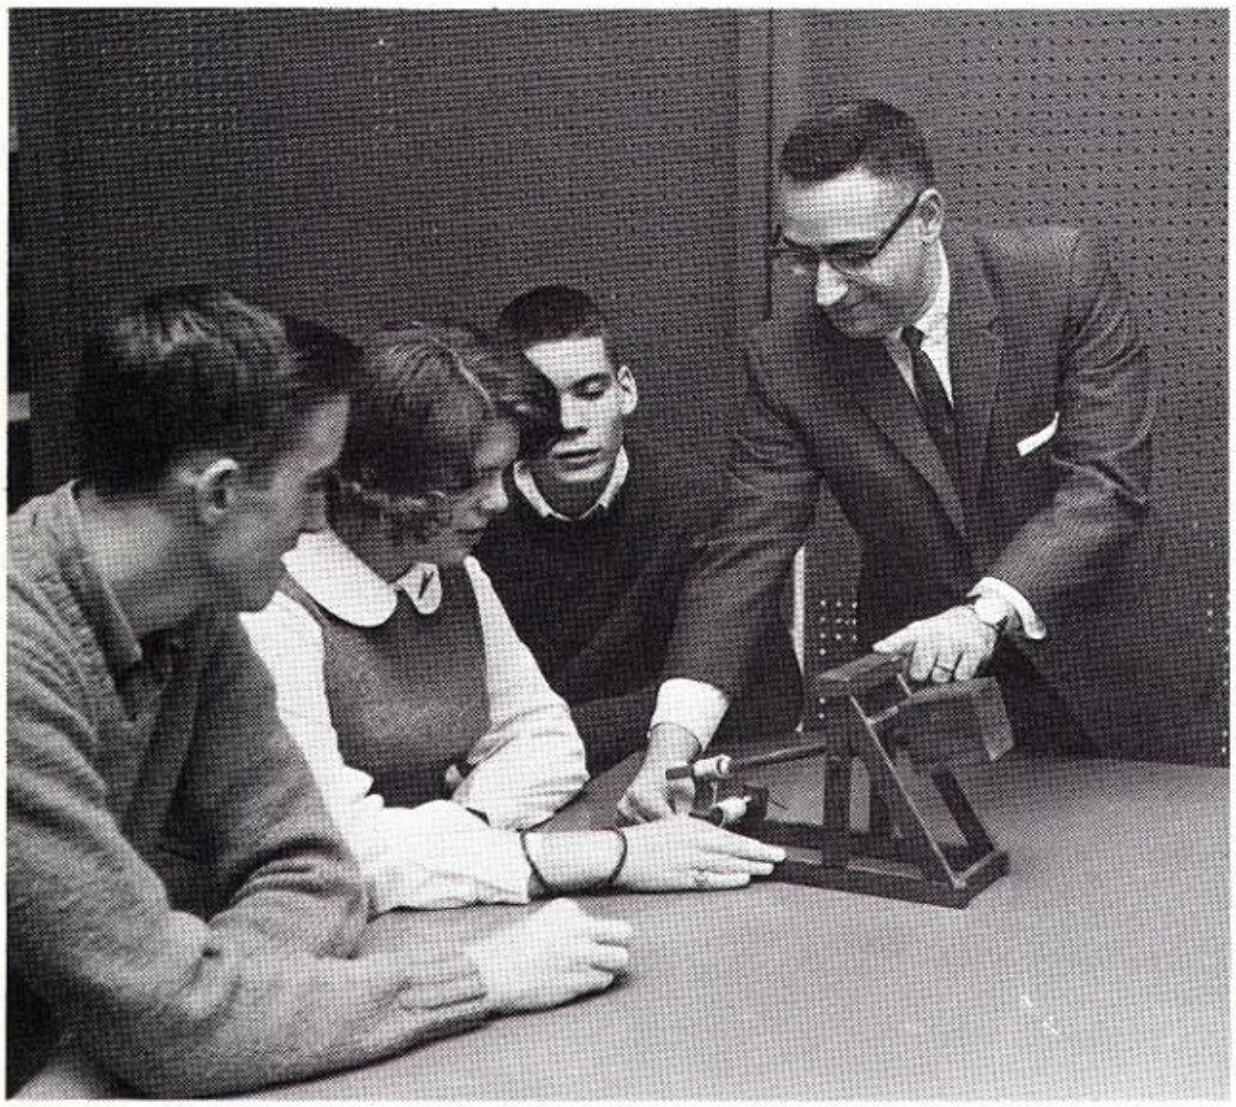
Interest in Foreign Culture

PAUL A. FUCHS
German and English
B.A., M.A., Seton Hall University



Watching films from Germany and playing German games are just some of the activities in which members of Mr. Fuchs' German Club take part. In addition, these German students participate in an annual contest at Princeton which is sponsored by the American Association of Teachers of German.

ANTHONY M. LIBRETTI
Latin
B.A., Seton Hall University



Under the direction of Mr. Libretti, the Latin Club is one of the liveliest clubs in the school. The members maintain an interesting bulletin board and do special research projects on their own. They also compete against students from all over the state in Latin contests at Montclair and Philadelphia.

EARLE THOMPSON

B.S., M.A., New York University

Lay readers give invaluable aid to English teachers by correcting students' compositions for grammatical errors.

Mr. Thompson's famous renditions of poetry and his contagious love of American literature have resulted in his receiving the Princeton Prize for Distinguished Teaching in the Secondary Schools of New Jersey.

Rumsonian editors as well as staff members are chosen on a basis of their capability and interest.

From the chaotic confusion of scurrying reporters, busy photographers and worried editors emerges our newspaper, the Rumsonian. Once a month, students and faculty receive issues containing interesting features, the latest in news and sports, and controversial editorials.

Under the supervision of Mr. Dignan, the editors and staffs of the Rumsonian strive to produce a publication that is truly "of the students, by the students, and for the students."

ALAN F. LYSTER
English
B.A., Princeton University

Well-known as the school's fine literary and art magazine, the Quarterly is more than a mere publication. This periodical, under the direction of Mr. Lyster, is published four times a year as a creative outlet for young writers and artists and as a means of recognizing the efforts of talented students.

Staffs Combine Efforts for

NAOMI MANNING
English
B.A., B.J., University of Texas

Production of the Tower is a class effort which requires the participation of every interested senior. Each student may help in the area in which he is qualified, under a staff of editors which is selected on the basis of teacher recommendations. Mrs. Manning gives helpful suggestions to the yearbook editor and the literary staff and is always ready to help with any problems which arise.

Yearbook sports editors and assistants learn the qualifications of a good sports picture. They select only those shots which are clear and sharp and show plenty of interesting action. The pictures are chosen from those taken by the Tower's photography editor as well as by the professional photographer.

RITA S. OREFICE
Commercial Subjects
B.S., Ed., Rider College

Mrs. Orefice, Tower and Quarterly business manager, is indispensable in managing accounts and balancing budgets.

Original poems, artwork, short stories and essays are submitted to the Quarterly staff for selection. The best works appear in each issue. Traditionally, the third issue is an awards edition which commends the truly exceptional achievements of the students.

a Successful Literary Year

Bustling activity and frantic last-minute decisions accompany the approach of each dreaded deadline of the "Tower" and "Quarterly." Busy editors develop a keen sense of responsibility as they realize that each decision they make will present a picture of the entire school to the community. The long hours they spend planning, organizing and editing are finally rewarded as they see the fruits of their efforts in actual print.

Many long hours are spent by the art editors as they work on lay-outs. Every page is set up differently and the girls must be sure that each arrangement is balanced and pleasing to the eye.

Members of the Tower's typing staff make use of their talent and training by helping the rest of the staff meet hectic deadlines. The production members keep things running with their smooth organization while the sales editor and his helpers work unceasingly to sell their quota of ads.

Student Council Strives

Fostering a feeling of harmony and cooperation throughout Regional, the Student Council gives each individual a voice in the school's government. Maintaining the spirit of democracy, it bridges the gap between student and teacher as it performs its essential duties through energetic homeroom representatives.

This year the American Field Service Club, formerly a branch of the Student Council, became a separate organization. The club is dedicated to the raising of funds for the community's student exchange program, and it gives each student the opportunity to take an active part in the A.F.S. plan.

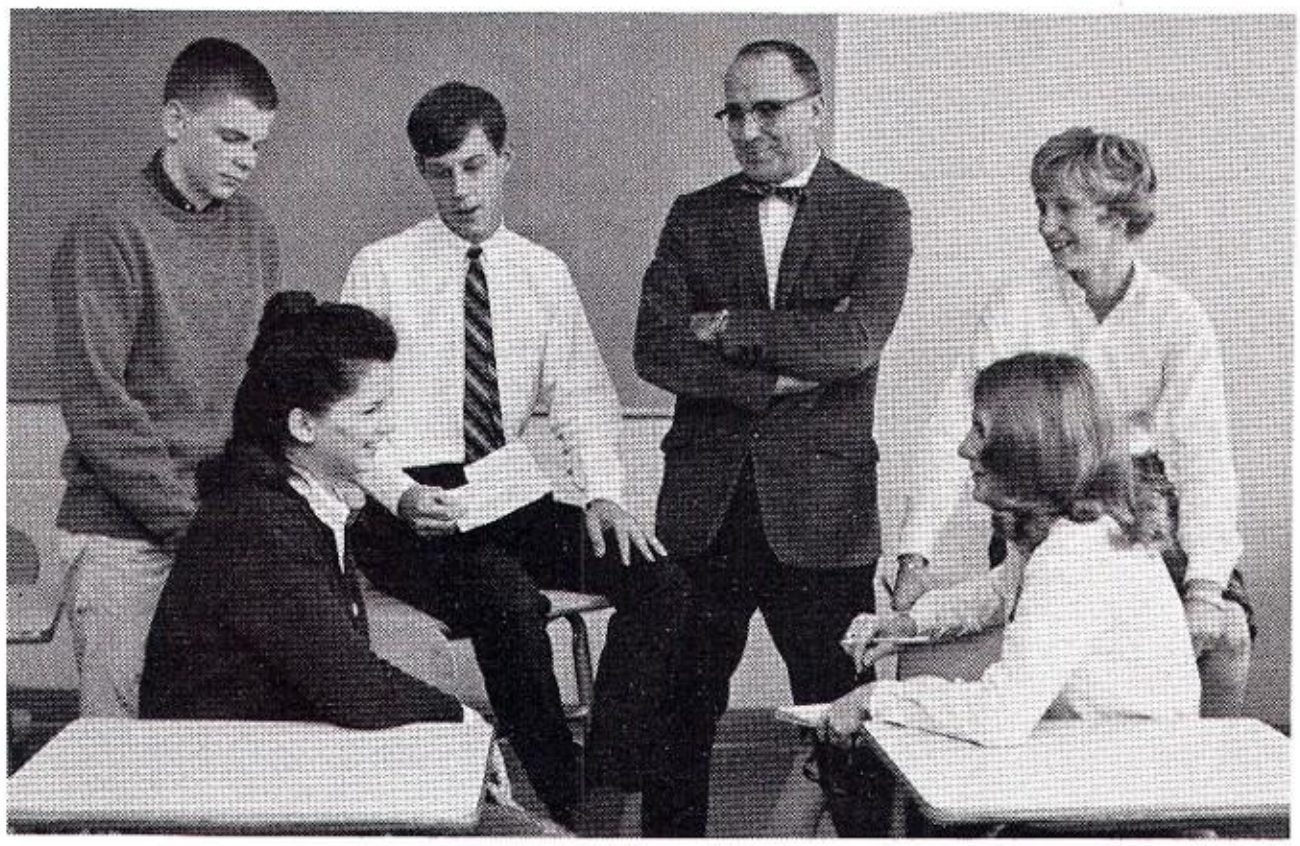
The S.G.A. school store has become an invaluable asset to Regional. Readily available to students are various school supplies, a wide selection of paperback books, study guides and even sweatshirts. Due to the success of this enterprise, an additional branch has been opened in the cafeteria.

for a Democratic Spirit

Regional's Student Council finances school dances, literary publications, the A.F.S. program and the Student Government Association. Through its unique Student Activities Ticket, the S.G.A. encourages greater participation in extra-curricular affairs. It also sponsors an annual Cultural Series which offers programs attractive to students and adults alike.

FLOYD DE NICOLA
Social Studies
Department Chairman
B.A., Upsala College
M.A., Ohio State University

The executive committee of the Student Council meets bi-weekly to plan the general meetings of the council. President Corey Rich leads the officers as they formulate a schedule of business for the homeroom representatives and discuss problems concerning the organization. As Council advisor, Mr. DeNicola coordinates its many functions.



CARNEY P. PETILLO
Commercial Subjects
B.S., Rider College

S.G.A. class treasurers, supervised by the Council's business manager, Mr. Petillo, balance the Activities Ticket collections of the homeroom representatives.

This year the Tower Players are under the new sponsorship of Mr. Culp. The twenty members, selected by competitive tryouts, practice three times a week. Meetings serve as workshops in which members learn the fundamental principles of acting through practice and hard work. At various intervals throughout the year, the group presents one-act plays to the student body.

ROBERT S. CULP

M.A., New York University

Oratory skills are developed by Regional's students through debating, public speaking and acting. Learning to express themselves effectively, they develop poise and self-assurance.

Students Display Oral Skills

Regional's Debating Club, under the excellent guidance of Mr. Kasten and Mr. Gilvin, strives to develop and to perfect forensic skills and to give students an opportunity to orate on diverse subjects. In addition to weekly club meetings, members also participate in interscholastic debates.

Skilled technical assistance and careful preparation add to the success of a stage production. With the combined efforts of faculty members and students, Regional's plays and assemblies are well-executed.

The Stage Technicians Club and its sponsor, Mr. Fred Puhlfuerst, render "behind the scenes" technical assistance to all of Regional's stage events. Each member must receive specialized training to perform his duties properly. A working knowledge of our school's electrical, sound and lighting equipment plus a thorough study of each system is essential.

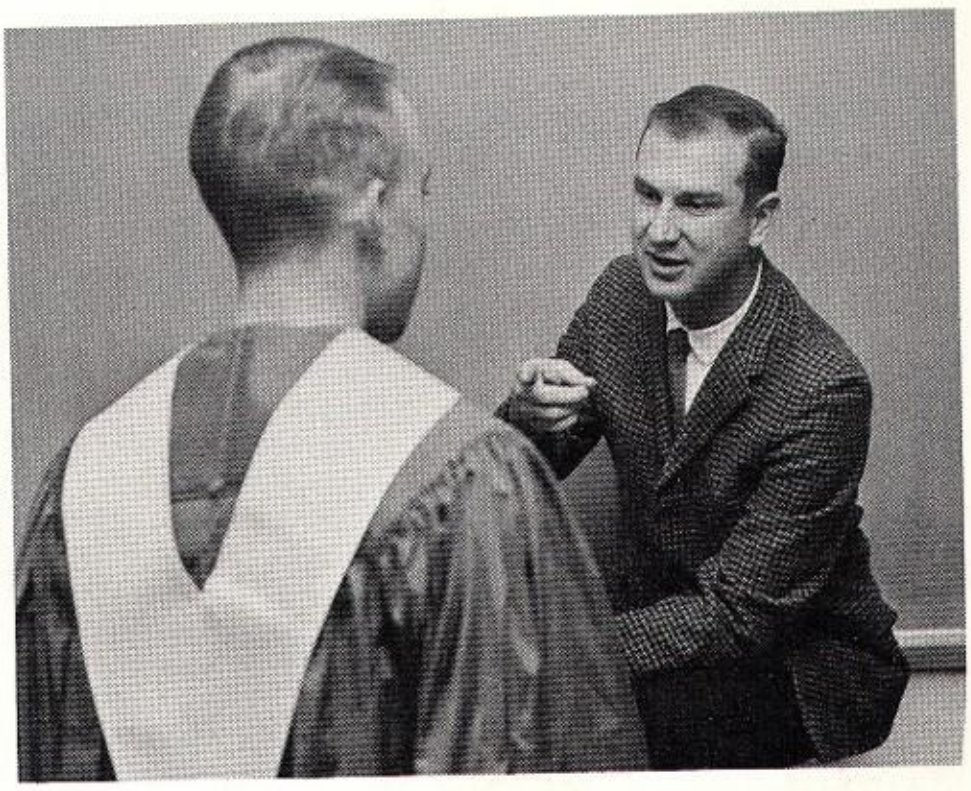
JOHN W. PATTERSON
Social Studies
B.A., University of North Carolina
S.T.B., General Theological Seminary

Mr. Patterson, as assembly chairman, is in charge of Regional's student assemblies. His job involves contacting various teachers, clubs, and local organizations, and asking them to participate in an assembly. At the beginning of each year he compiles an assembly list and then supervises the actual preparation and production work.

WILLIAM PETRICK
Mathematics
B.S., University of Utah



The National Honor Society, under the advisorship of Mr. Petrick, provides a means of honoring the students who successfully maintain a 4.5 average. As a service, members tutor other pupils who are having difficulty with their academic work. Graduating seniors attend a spring banquet given in their honor by underclass members, and are entitled to wear a special collar over their commencement robes to signify their achievement.

Scholars Receive Recognition

BARRY P. BRADFORD
Social Studies
B.A., Alfred University
M.Ed., Rutgers University

Directed by Miss Kelly and Mr. Bradford, the History Honor Society exists for the purpose of encouraging scholarship in political science. The club has discussion periods and guest lecturers. Each spring, the members enjoy a three-day excursion to an historical site.

Character, leadership and service, in addition to academic strength, qualify students for membership in the honor societies. Hard work and extra effort are rewarded as pupils receive well-deserved recognition for their outstanding accomplishments through these respected organizations.

Library Council Serves School

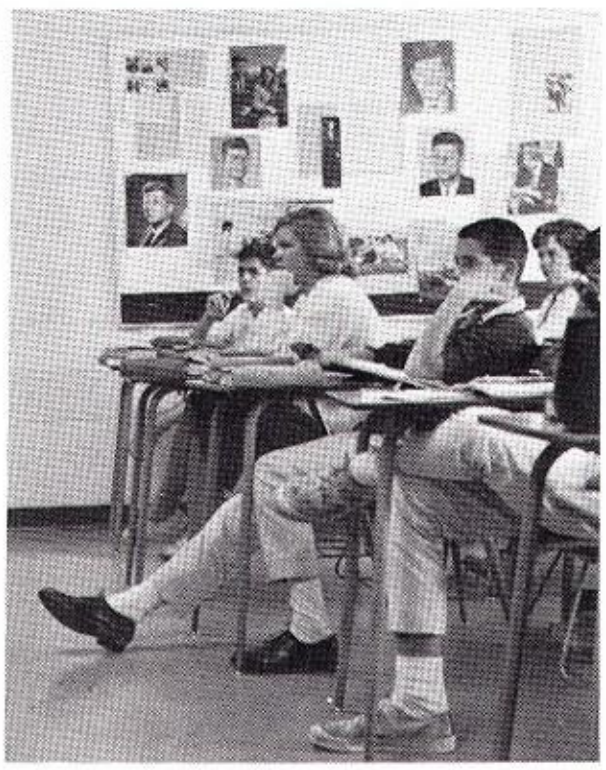
ELVA FISCHETTE
Librarian
B.A., Douglass College
M.S., Columbia University

Due to the addition of many new books by the Home and School Association, the Library Council is busier than ever this year. This group helps Mrs. Fischette by shelving books, working at the charge-out desk, typing cards and labels, and repairing worn covers and pages.

Helpful Library Council members work diligently during their study halls and free time to provide students with an orderly, attractive place to study.

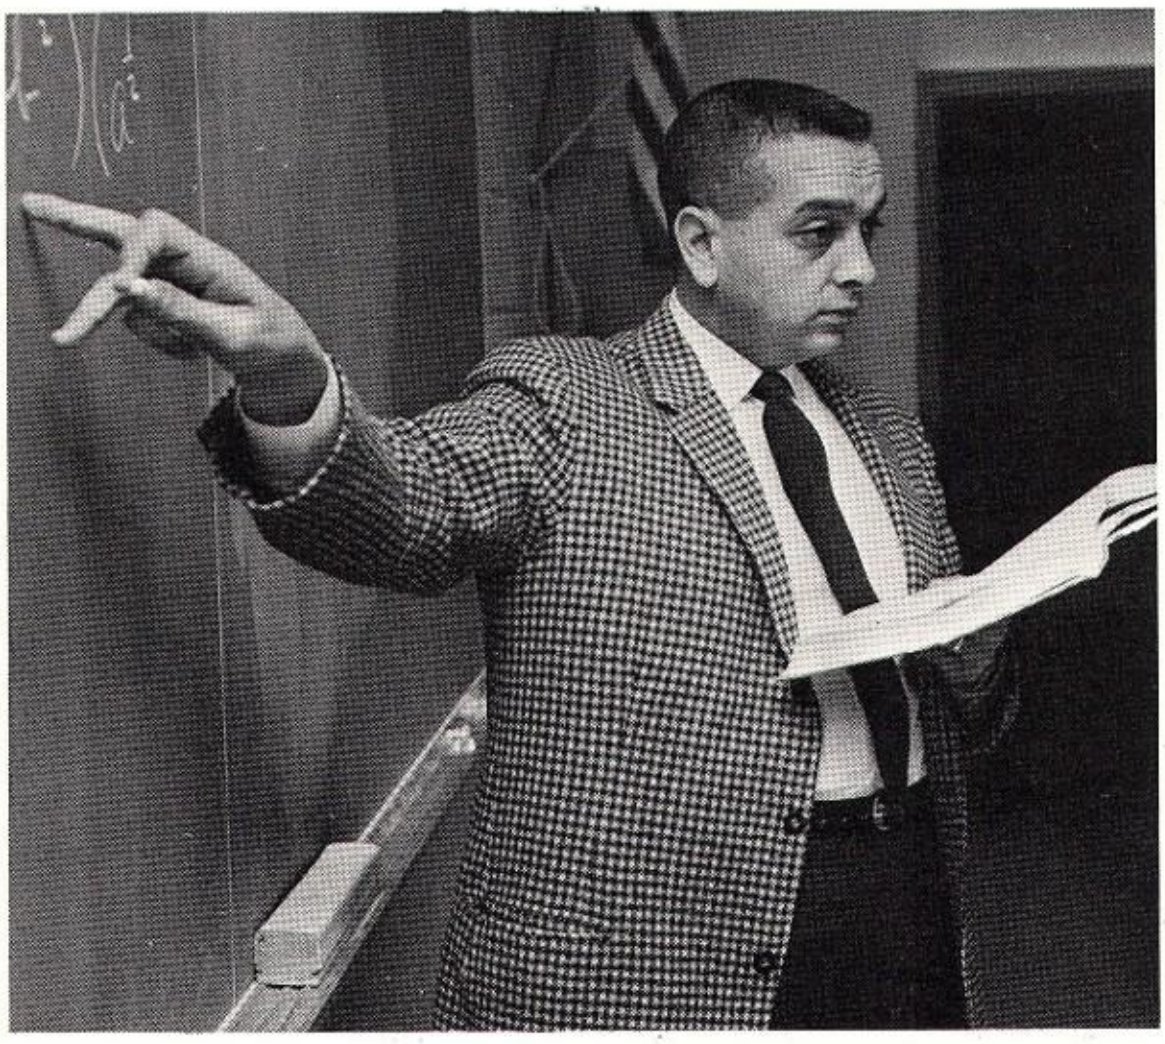
Course Enlightens Freshmen

After becoming acquainted with the school, the freshmen are given basic tips on studying from Mrs. Stockham and Mr. George. Aptitude and occupational tests are given and developmental reading improves the students' reading skills. They also study occupations and psychology.



Apprehension and feelings of uncertainty experienced by our newcomers to Regional are gradually dissolved as the seemingly complicated business of school policy, curriculum and clubs is explained to them.

Math Teachers Supplement



THOMAS J. BOTTI, JR.
Mathematics
Department Chairman
A.B., St. Peter's College
M.A., New York University

Enthusiasm is given to diverse extra-curricular activities as Regional's math teachers assume their double roles as coaches, advisors and club sponsors. Energetic twirlers, proud Varsity letter winners, future military prospects and conscientious math scholars all benefit from their support.

Many extra tasks befall Mr. Botti who, as head of the Math Department, tries to make it work as one teacher instead of many. He observes classes, devises the department's budget, and takes inventory of the books. At meetings he discusses problems such as grading and course weaknesses with the other math teachers.

NELLIE NODDINGS
Mathematics
A.B., Montclair State College

Meeting weekly on Wednesday afternoons the Math College Board Club is supervised by Mrs. Noddings. The students ask questions and attempt to solve them among themselves. Members have a review text book which contains problems similar to those given on the College Board Examinations. The club is open to seniors during the first semester and to juniors the second.

Supervised by Mrs. Kern, our high-steppers are as lively as ever this year. Captained by Carol Dunn, they stage excellent performances at games, parades, and competitions. They spark our football games with their routines in cooperation with the band and their talented drum majorette, Di Leeper.

JOHN H. POSTEN

GEORGE J. GIFFIN
Sciences
Department Chairman
B.A., M.S., Colby College
M. Ed., University of Vermont

As supervisor of Regional's Photography Club, Mr. Giffin instructs interested members in the intricate manipulation of cameras and other photographic equipment. The students also learn special darkroom techniques by developing negatives and printing their own pictures.

CLIFFORD R. APPLEGATE
Sciences
B.S., Murray State College

Australia, South America, Alaska and Europe have all been reached by members of the Radio and Electronics Club via their short wave radio. The members often communicate with other schools and one-fourth of them are licensed ham operators. Mr. Applegate, as the club's advisor, supervises the radio communications and helps the boys with the building of amplifiers and electrical appliances.

Apply Scientific Knowledge

JOHN SANDFORD
Sciences
B.S., M.A., Seton Hall University

Science-minded students can do independent research on a subject of particular interest to them and receive assistance from Miss Ponti and Mr. Sandford, the moderators of the Science Projects Club. The primary object of the club is to help interested students learn as much as they can about the different sciences.

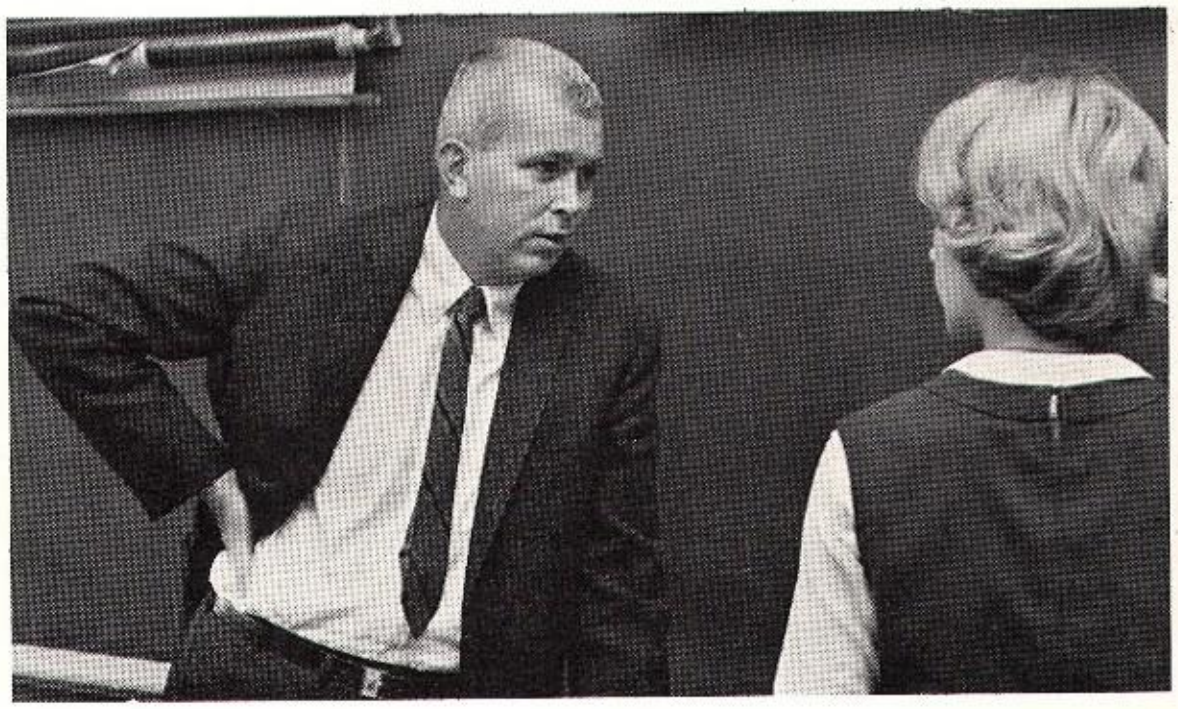
RUTH PONTI
Biology
B.S., Cornell University

Ambitious students study and observe the fascinating world of science. By experimentation and diligent application, their entire scientific perspective expands beyond its confines and reaches out to the unknown.

ROBERT J. LEES
Biology-General Science
B.S., Rutgers University

The Horticulture Club, under the direction of Mr. Lees, has many projects designed to add beauty to the school. At Christmas time, club members make wreaths for the front doors and exquisite arrangements for the Christmas program.

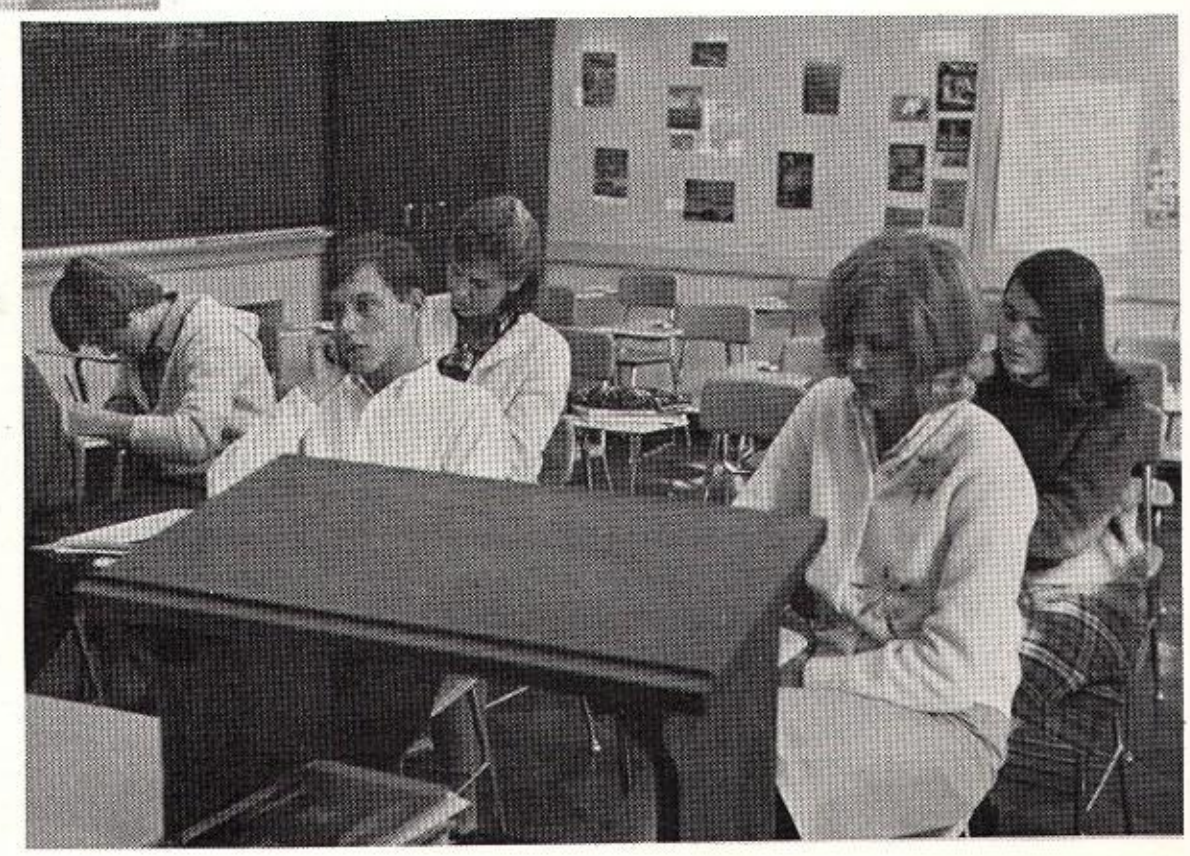
Advanced Courses Prepare



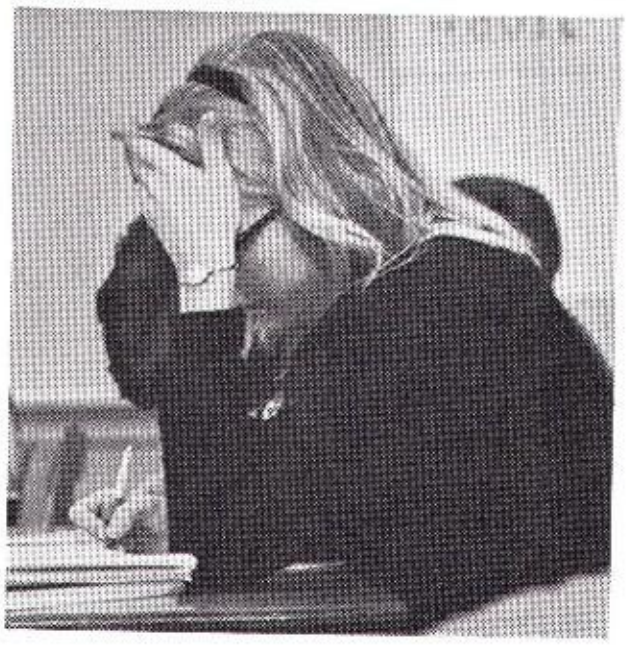
The advanced course in American history is conducted by Mr. Trotter. He approaches the material chronologically, using Hicks' two-volume series, The Federal Union and The American Nation. Students are expected to do individual outside reading of a collateral nature. A term paper, based on original research, is the major project of the year.

Industrious seniors encounter greater challenges in four special advanced courses. Original research and new teaching methods are particularly stressed. Self-discipline is encouraged and developed as students participate in college-level work. Deep satisfaction is derived by each student from advanced study as extra time is spent in preparation and research.

In addition to the regular senior English course, a small group of students take a special course entitled Creative Writing. These seniors have two periods a day with Mr. Lyster. The extra period is devoted to the study of philosophy, both classical and modern, and the development of creativity.

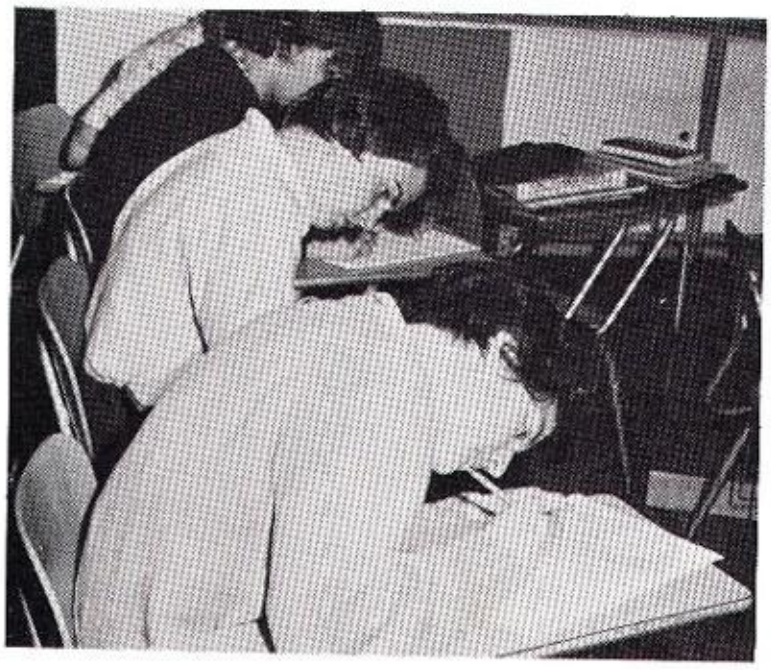


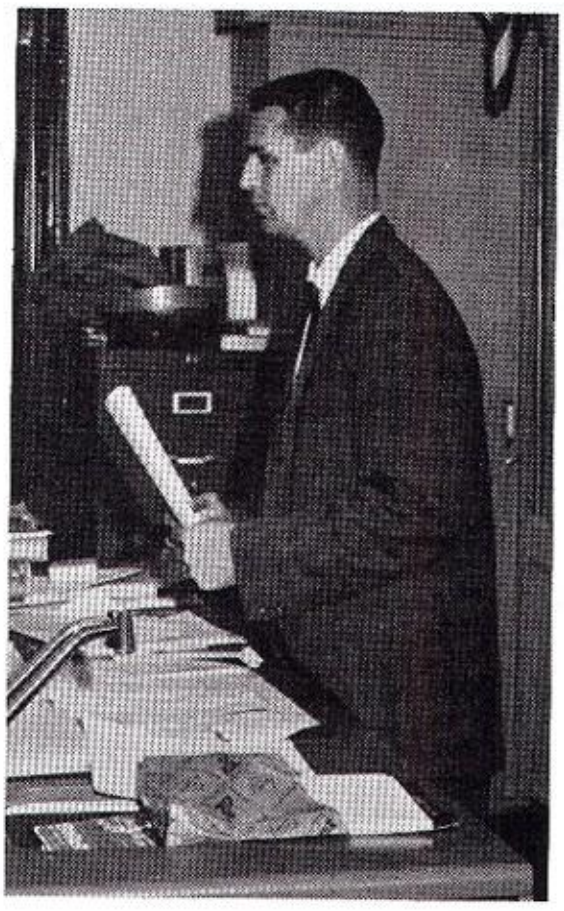
Ambitious Seniors for College



In the advanced math course, Mr. Dell'Omo teaches carefully selected mathematics students the elements of calculus and analytic geometry. Students must be thoroughly familiar with Algebra I and II, plane and solid geometry, and trigonometry before tackling this course. The text by George B. Thomas, Jr. is used.

With emphasis on laboratory exercises and advanced reading, the advanced biology course is an introduction to college-level general biology. Mr. Giffin presents the material to the students in a series of lectures followed by frequent labs and movies. The highlights of the course are the autumn and spring field trips to Stokes State Forest.

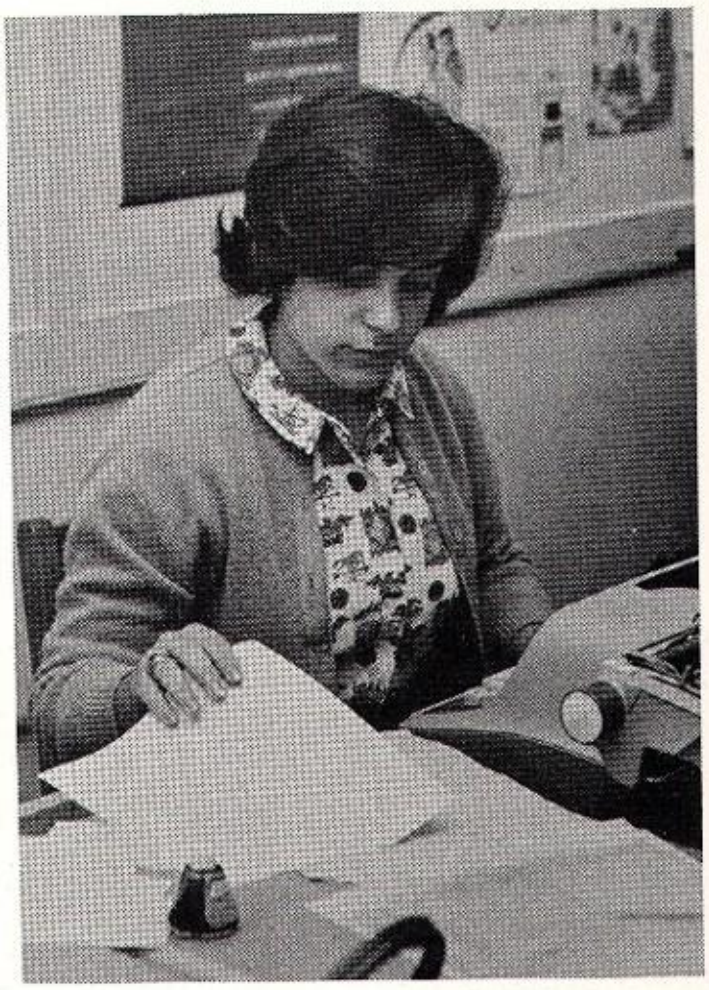




Secretaries Work Proficiently

MADELINE B. ZELEK
Secretarial Subjects
Department Chairman
B. Ed., M.C.S., Rider College

Members of the Business Service Club, under the supervision of Mrs. Zelek, help the faculty and administration with all their necessary secretarial work.



A welcome lift to burdened teachers is given by members of the Business Service Club. Devoting much time, energy and skill, they type, file and mimeograph.

The girls, who are excellent typists, spend one or more busy periods a day working diligently to meet the deadlines for their typing projects.

Members of the club perform numerous and varied tasks. Their secretarial "jobs" involve typing letters, tests and report cards, mimeographing notices, and helping in the offices.

Members of the Leathercraft Club, assisted by Mr. Lynch, use their ingenuity to make a variety of articles.

JOSEPH M. LYNCH

M.A., Montclair State College

Under the expert supervision of Mr. Carter, members of the Audio Visual Aids Club learn to operate intricate and expensive equipment. They offer their services to the faculty, by delivering and setting up various types of machinery, including tape recorders and movie projectors.

Regional's young homemakers of tomorrow are given instruction and guidance from Mrs. Alta Stratton. Club projects include the fun of making Christmas presents, baking and serving at teas, and helping to make the Annual Board of Education Dinner a success.

Eager Home Ec students extend their enthusiasm through the various activities of the Home Economics Club. Special Christmas projects for orphans and the aged spark interest in utilizing acquired homemaking skills.

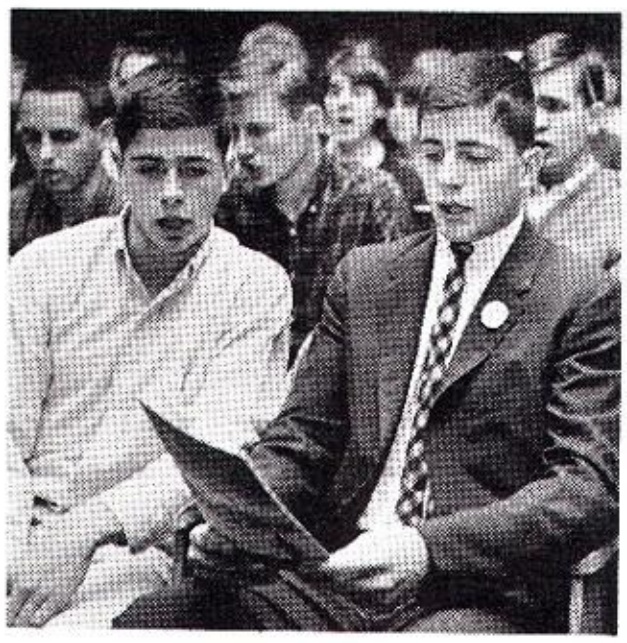
Miss Tyndall encourages new projects such as a composite mural painting depicting life at Regional, a theater mosaic adjacent to the auditorium, and weaving on a loom.

Budding artists express their originality and creativity via many exciting medias of art. Others satisfy their mental acquisitiveness by studying the history of art, one of the most enjoyable forms of human expression.

Vocalists Unite in Song

PAUL GRAMMER
Vocal Music
B.A., Montclair State College
M.A., Columbia University T. C.

Regional's chorus is led and supervised by our spirited music director, Mr. Paul Grammer.



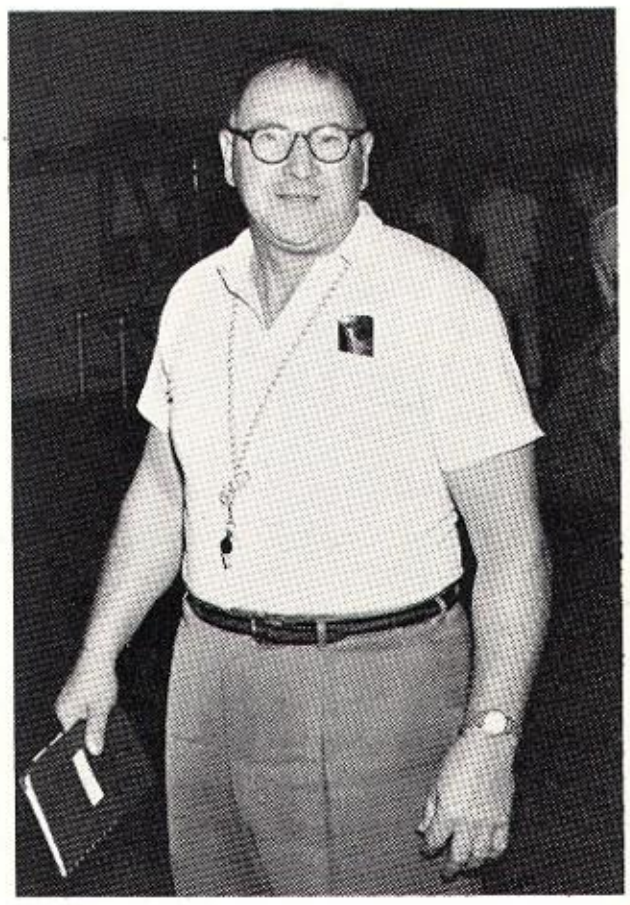
The one hundred and twenty members sing at the Christmas and Spring Concerts, as well as at Baccalaureate. This year the Chorus took a trip to the Metropolitan Opera House.

The joy of singing together is experienced by Chorus members. Diligent rehearsals result in quality performances. Audiences thrill with pleasure to their harmony, as voices blend and fill the air with beautiful music.

Freshman girls strive to attain vocal excellence through hard work and plenty of practice.

Tower Singers, forty students with special vocal talent, perform more intricate and difficult works.

Activities Promote Physical



JOSEPH H. ROSATI
Director of Athletics
B.S., Bucknell University

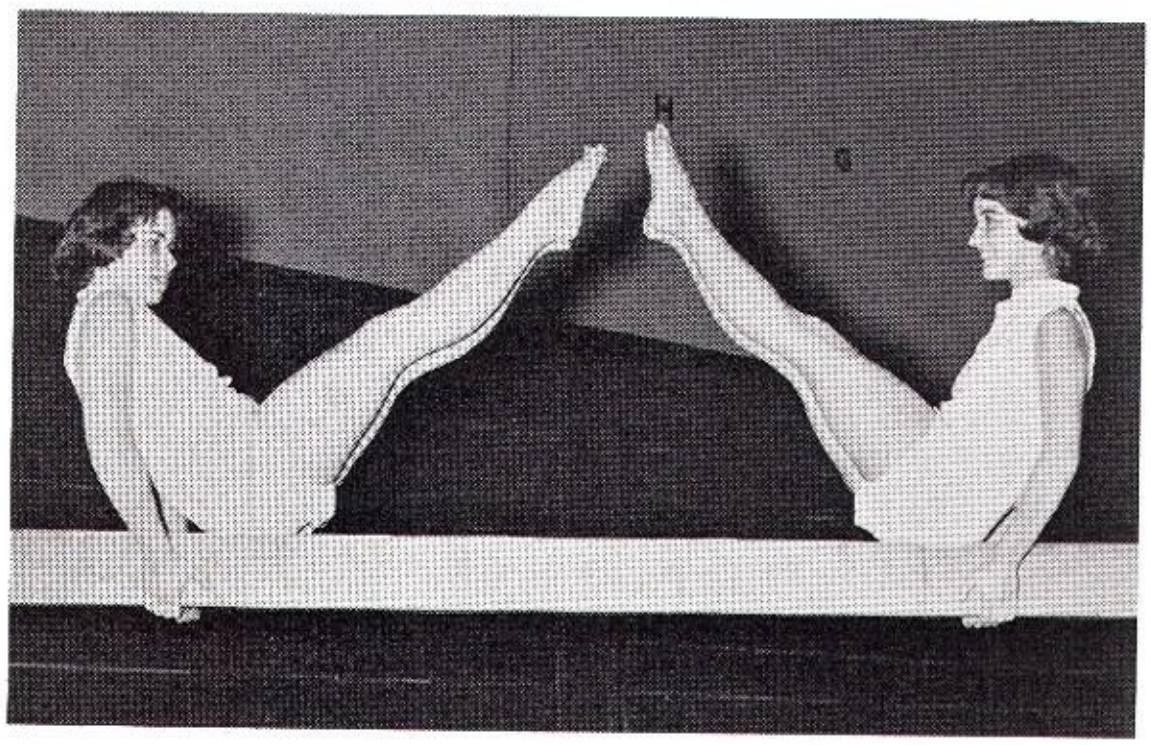
ALMA S. TITMAN
Physical Education
B.P.E., Panzer College

"Leaders," girls who are especially adept at gymnastics, help their classmates to learn the fundamentals of heavy apparatus. A certain amount of time is spent on every piece of apparatus and then each girl selects two pieces on which to be tested.

An overwhelming sense of personal satisfaction and accomplishment accompanies each perfected feat on heavy apparatus. Physical fitness is emphasized as individual potential is developed.



Girls work out on the horse, uneven parallel bars, ropes, balance beam and rings. They create and perfect original routines for various demonstrations as well as for the semi-annual gym show.

Enthusiastic girls share their plans for future careers in nursing and teaching. By undertaking interesting projects, helping in hospitals and visiting schools, they gain a better understanding of these professions.

SHARON ORD
French
B.A., Brigham Young University

Although the Future Teachers Club meets only once a month, Miss Ord, the advisor, includes many activities in its meetings. Speakers from various fields of education attend the meetings and discuss the qualifications of becoming a good teacher. During the year, a trip to a state teachers' college is taken.

Members Prepare for Future

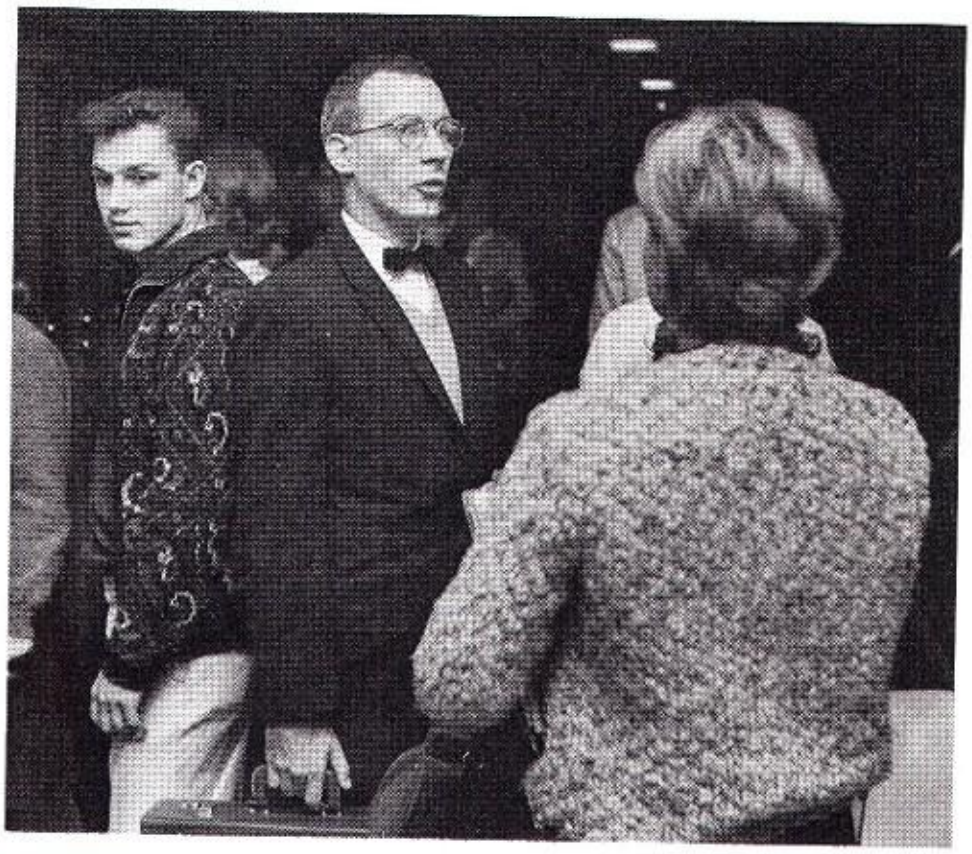
MARION DUCKERS
School Nurse
B.S., Columbia University

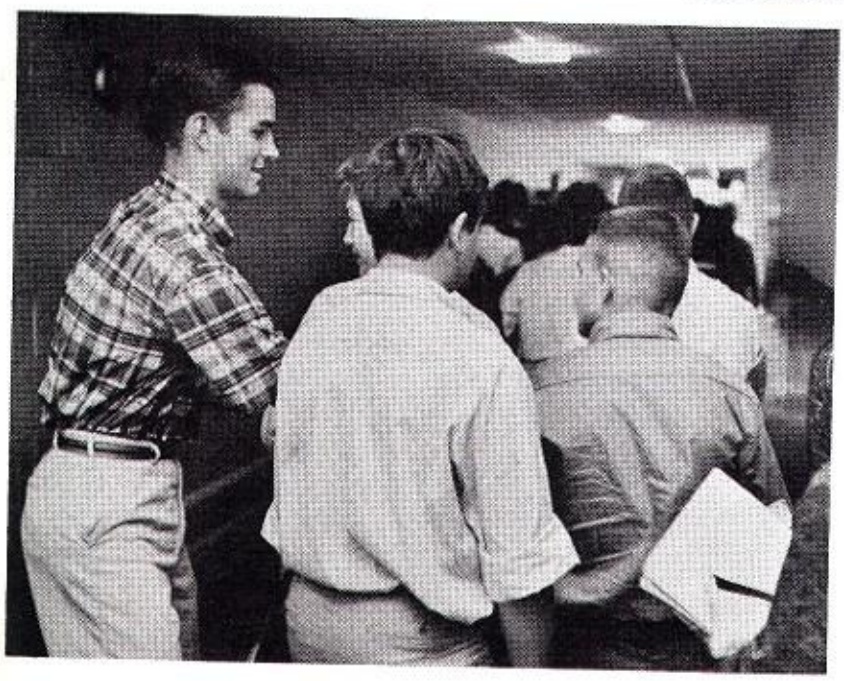
Under the direction of Miss Marion Duckers, Regional's registered nurse, the Future Nurses of America Club instills in its members the discipline and meaning of a nursing career. The girls help in the health office, in neighboring hospitals and in community projects. Members of the Red Cross Council make useful items for underprivileged people in our area and in nearby districts.

Students Volunteer Services

Under the direction of Thomas Botti, members of the Service Club, acting as ushers, guides or ticket collectors, are always ready to render assistance at a moment's notice. They willingly contribute their energy and services to the Home and School Association, to assemblies and to other activities sponsored by the school.

Invaluable aid is willingly rendered by students in various phases of school life. Monitors assert authority in regulating between-class traffic while guides of the Service Club are always on hand to make visitors feel welcome.





Senior boys have the almost impossible task of maintaining order in the corridors. They keep students moving in a circular motion during the hectic four minute between-class breaks. The boys, chosen by Mr. Fuchs during their junior year, monitor during the last quarter of their junior year and the first three quarters of the senior. Their help is again utilized in June to classify and distribute caps and gowns.

Talented Musicians Provide

KENNETH WALTERS
Instrumental Music
B.Mus.Ed., Louisiana State University
M.A., Columbia University

Regional's band and dance band, under the capable leadership of Mr. Walters, are the finest in the history of the school. Members of the concert band, selected by competitive tryouts, play at assemblies, elementary schools, Christmas and Spring musicals and graduation. They also entertain at pep rallies, football games and march in parades.

Spirit and Entertainment

Capturing the many-sided spirit of music, Regional's band fills the air with reverberating sounds. Instrumentalists execute various types of music ranging from classical to popular. Music that sets the foot to tapping swells and surges, then dies to a whisper, captivating its attentive audience.

The dance band, a select group which plays at school dances and music programs, is composed of exceptionally skilled members of the concert band.

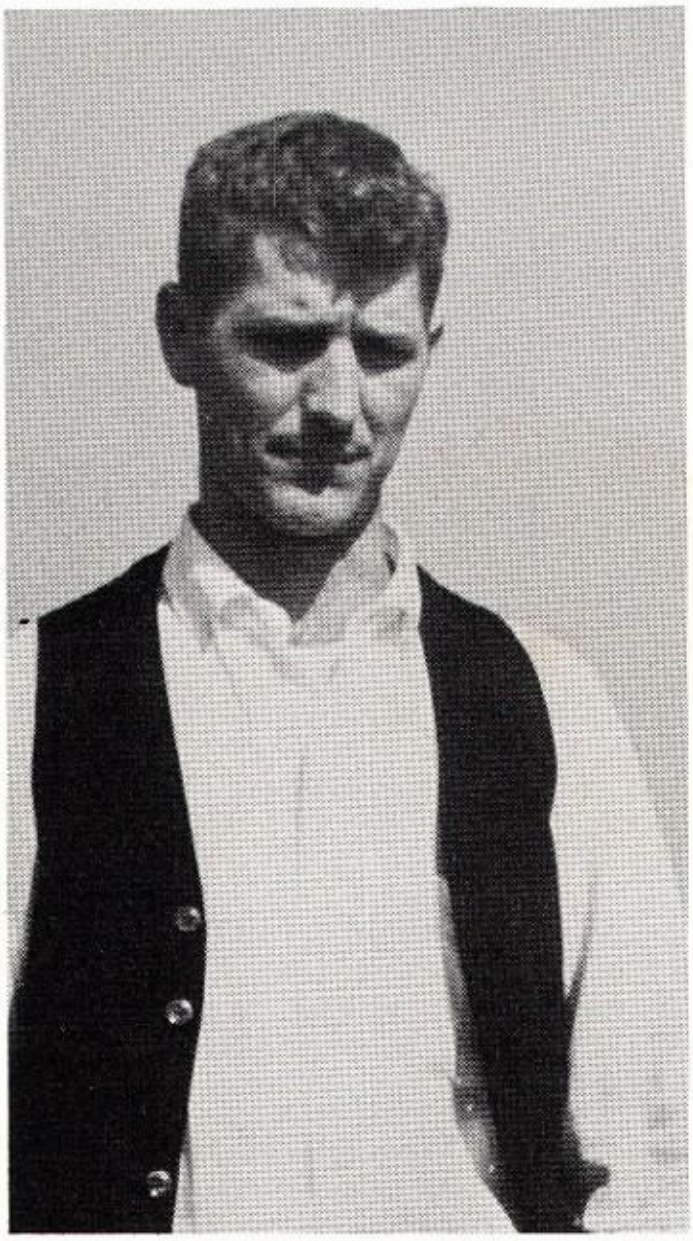
Spirited Bulldog Nine



Coach Applegate enjoys a fine varsity season.

Sparking Regional to a very respectable season was a young, inexperienced team. With only a handful of lettermen returning, it was predominantly a rebuilding year for the Bulldog nine. Coach Applegate, however, instilled confidence and desire to win in his players, enabling them to perform to their utmost.

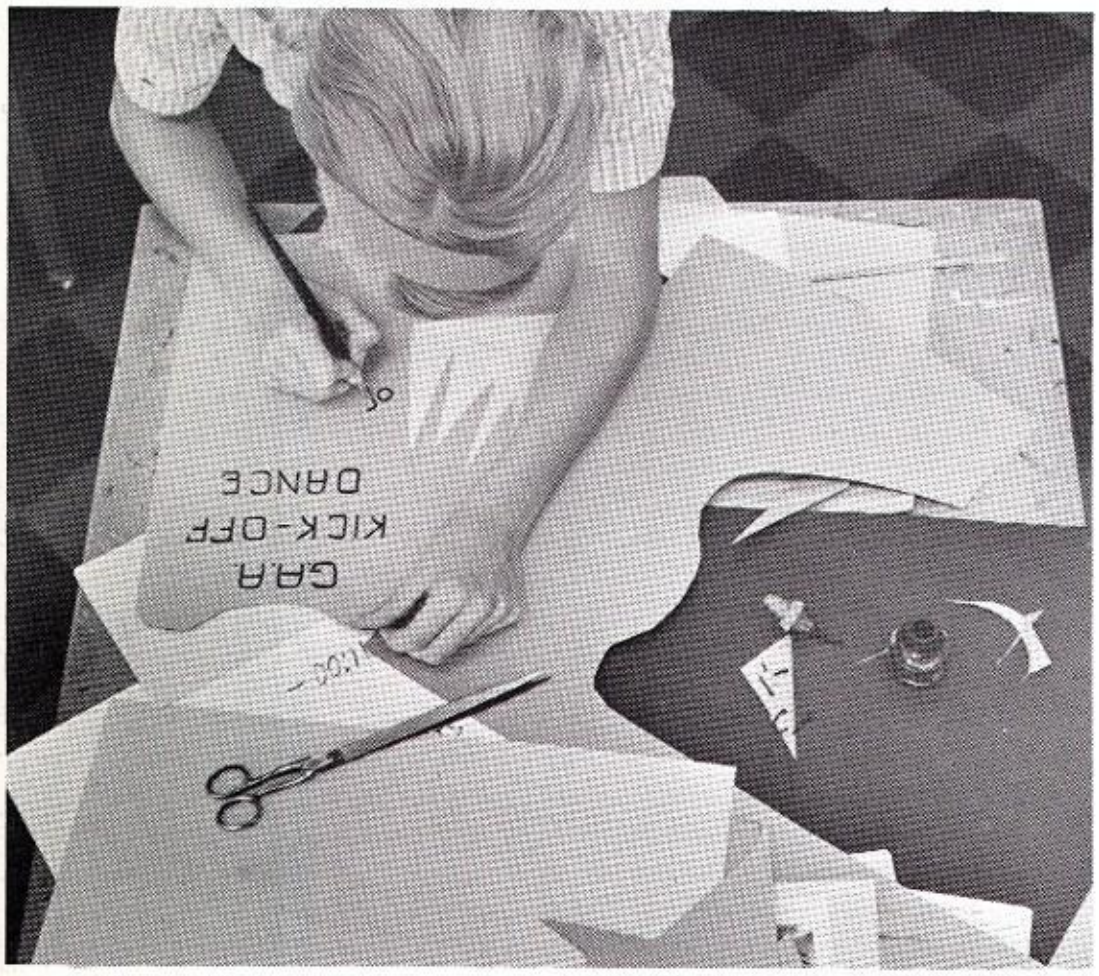
G. A. A. Sparks School Spirit



Desk scattered with papers, one of the girls makes a poster for the popular Kick-Off Dance.

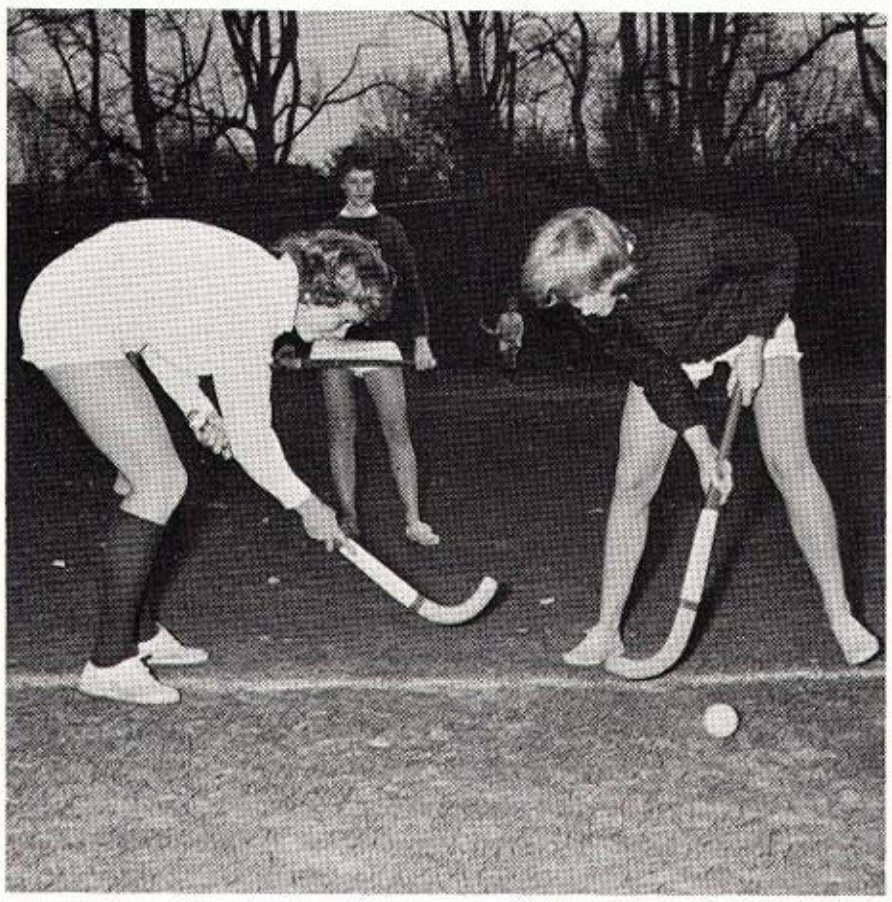
Diligence, good times and rewarding experiences are the call words of the Girls' Athletic Association. Starting the football season off right with the ever-popular Kick-Off Dance, the girls eagerly support the teams with the Booster drive —"Which will be the first homeroom with 100%?" Climaxing the year is the Mother-Daughter Awards Banquet, where girls receive N.J.A.A.G. awards, bowling trophies and the most outstanding senior girl athlete is named.

Club officers pore over award standings as active members help prepare for the annual Mother-Daughter Awards Banquet.

Mrs. Robinson imparts a bit of helpful instruction.

Senior girls try to shield themselves against the bitter wind.

Action Fills the Brisk Air



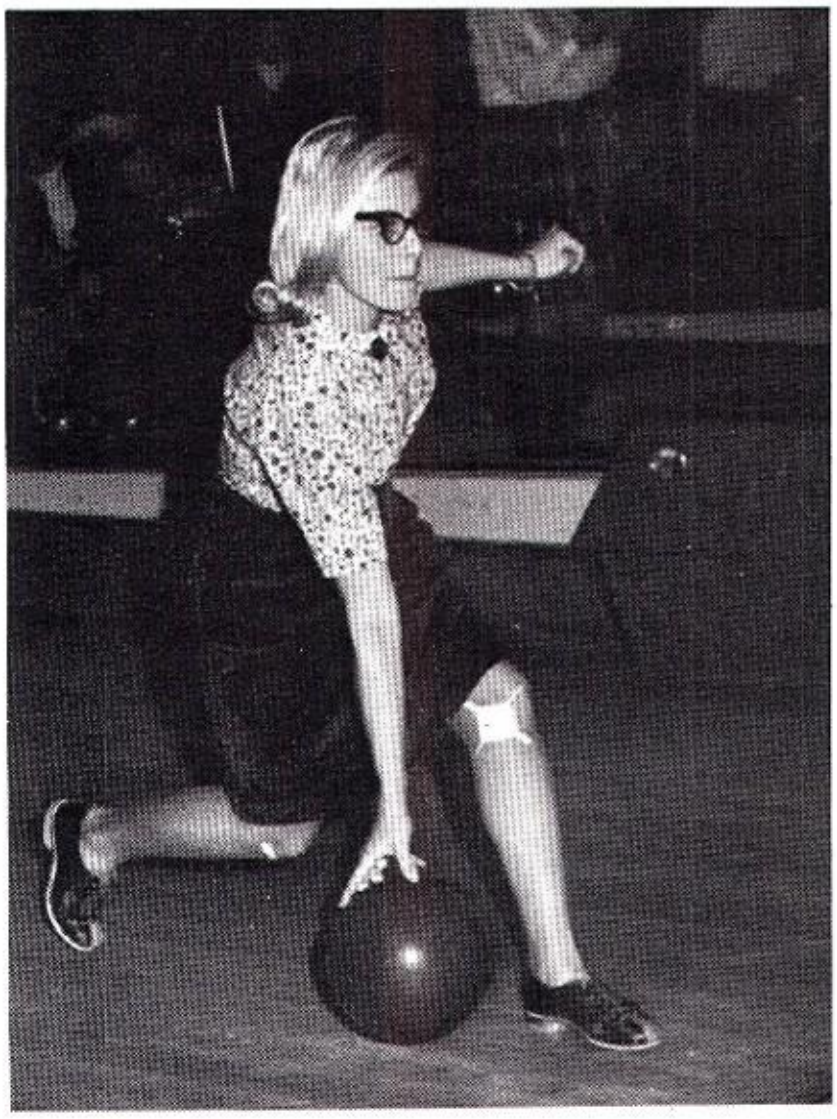
Vitality and friendly rivalry mark the pride taken in skillful hockey playing.

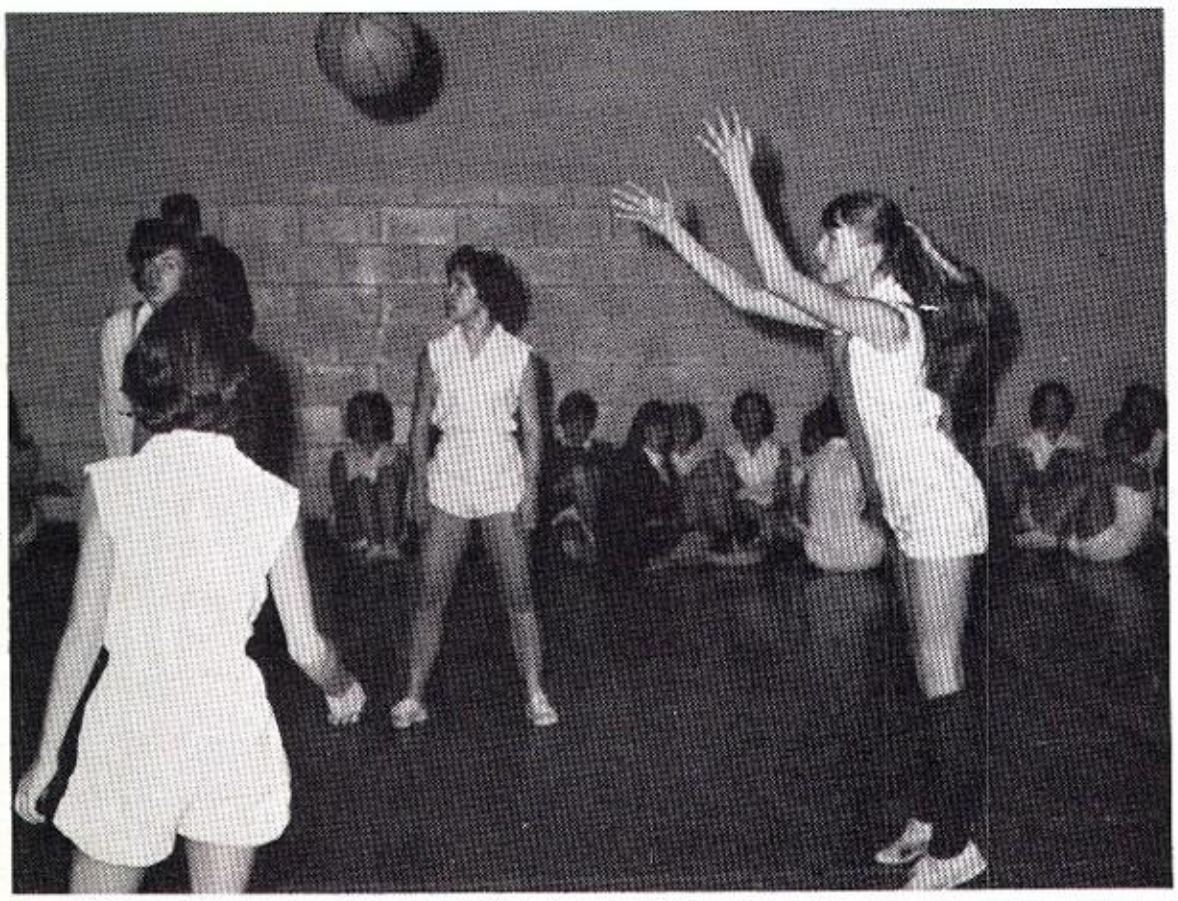
Expertly wielding their hockey sticks, girls battle valiantly for the ball in hope of scoring a goal. Shouts fill the crisp autumn air as anxious players call out to their backs to pass them the ball. Being the most strenuous of girls' sports, it attracts many who revel in its invigorating action, thrilling victories and heart-rending defeats.

Winter Sports Promote Activity

Enlivening the dull winter months with activity, basketball and bowling find many avid enthusiasts. After-school intramural games and weekly treks to Red Bank Recreation are two things no girl will soon forget. The sheer pleasure of simply participating is increased by the desire to win, to maintain the average, and to get a trophy!

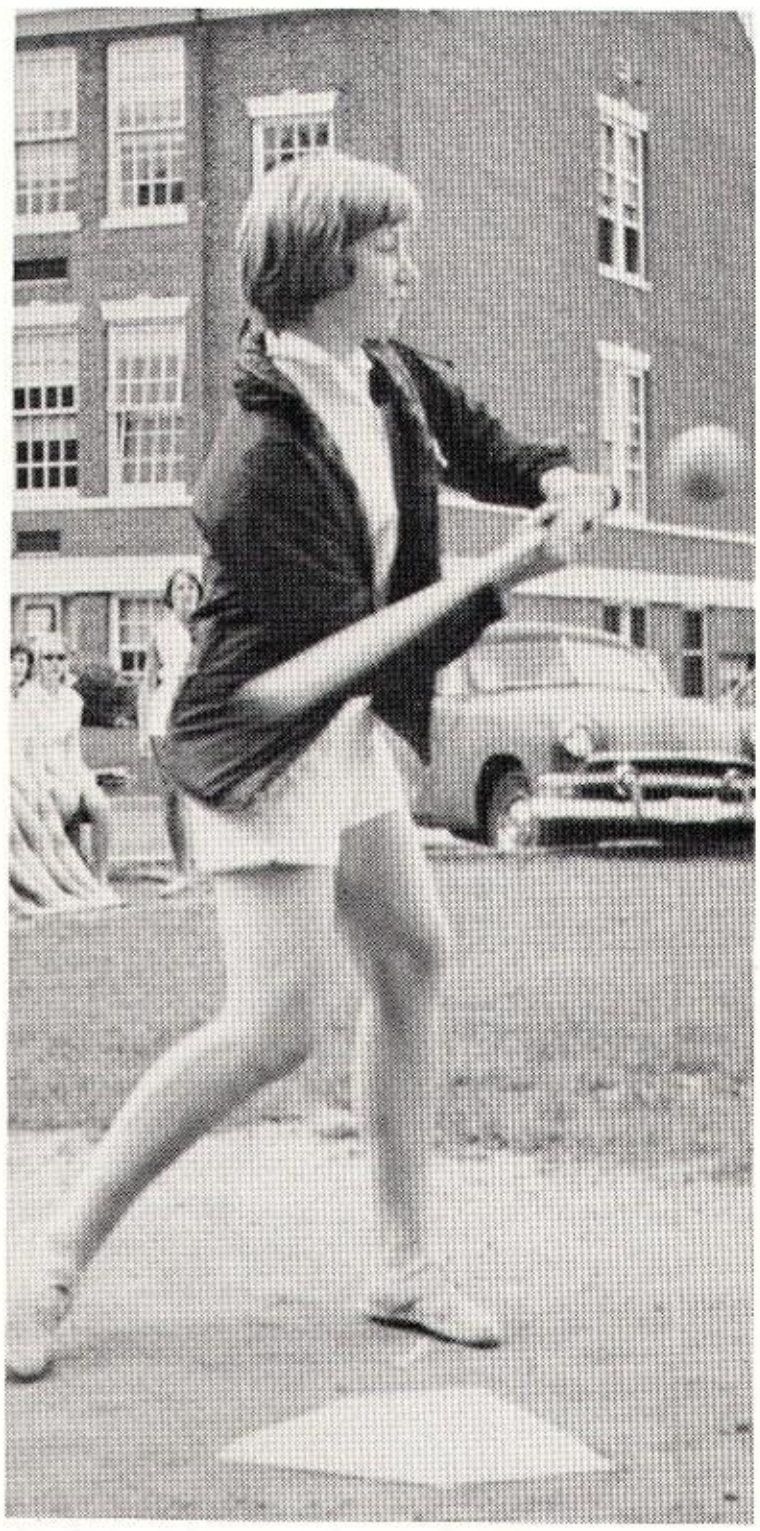
Scoring is another skill taught in the after-school bowling contests where girls learn that concentration and form are essential for success.





A freshman makes a foul shot as seniors look on, waiting for their game to begin.

Teamwork and Individual Effort

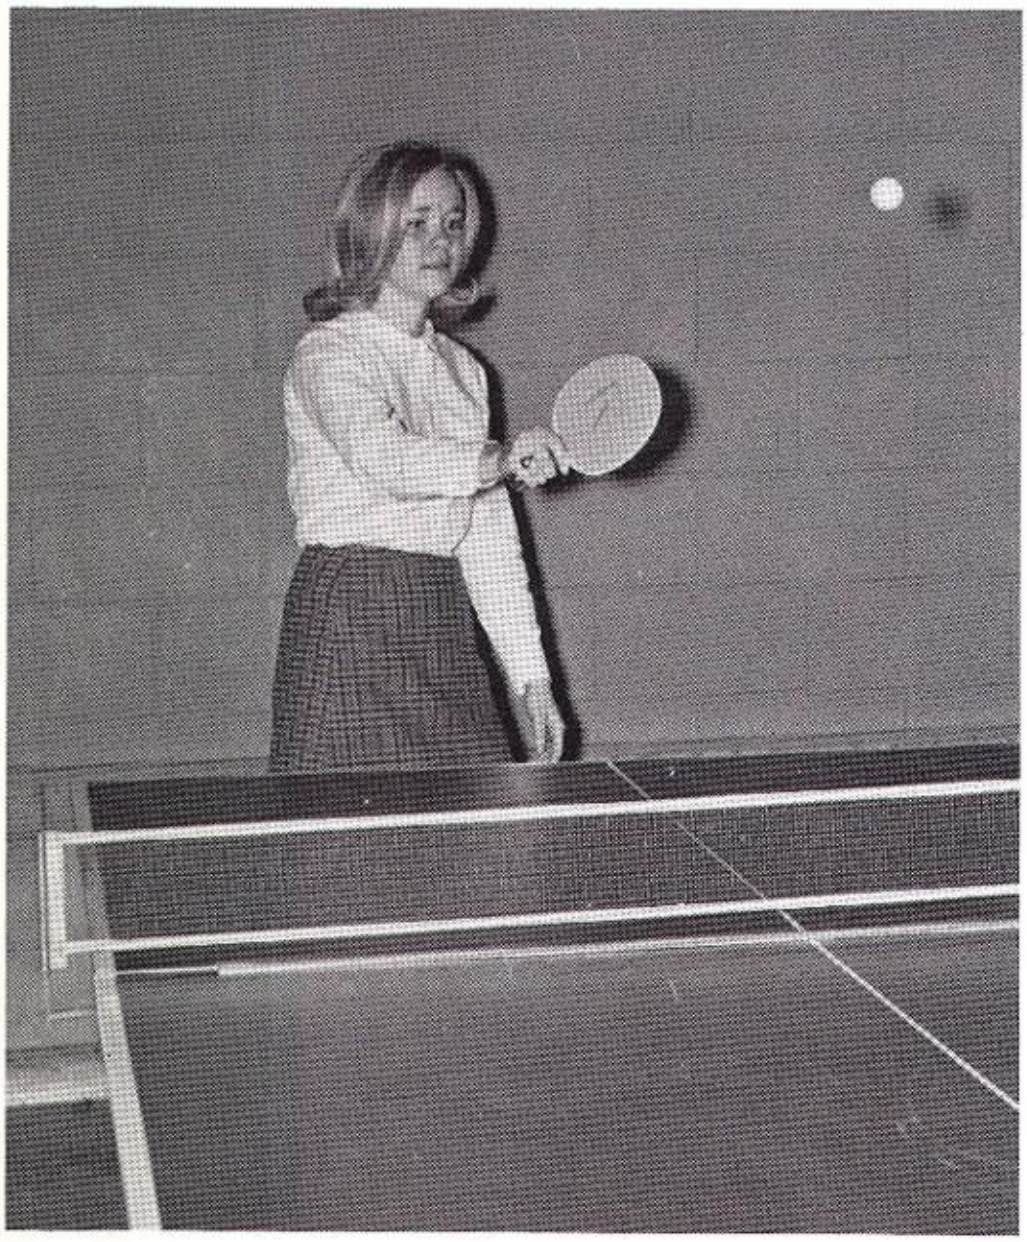


Martha and Jane, best of friends, heartily oppose each other during an intramural game.

Shouted encouragement, heckled umpires, and well-meant "advice" are all a part of baseball, a perennial favorite. The spring days ring with sound. Crack—Home run! Slide—Safe! Run on your third strike! Individualistic yet group coordinated, baseball develops self-reliance and a sense of responsibility to yourself and to others.

Officiating is serious business!

Are Vital Elements of Sport



An individual sport where the outcome depends solely on your own ability, ping-pong is ever-popular.

Constantly alert and on their toes to return that ball with accuracy are the girls competing in ping-pong and badminton matches. Keen competition develops among individuals who strive to improve their skills in an effort to come out on top. Excitement mounts as final playoffs approach. Also challenging the ability of the individual and providing an outlet for creativity is the exhibition sport of heavy apparatus.

Heavy apparatus provides an extra challenge for girls with ability in gymnastics.

The after-school games of badminton, played in teams of two, attract many enthusiastic participants.

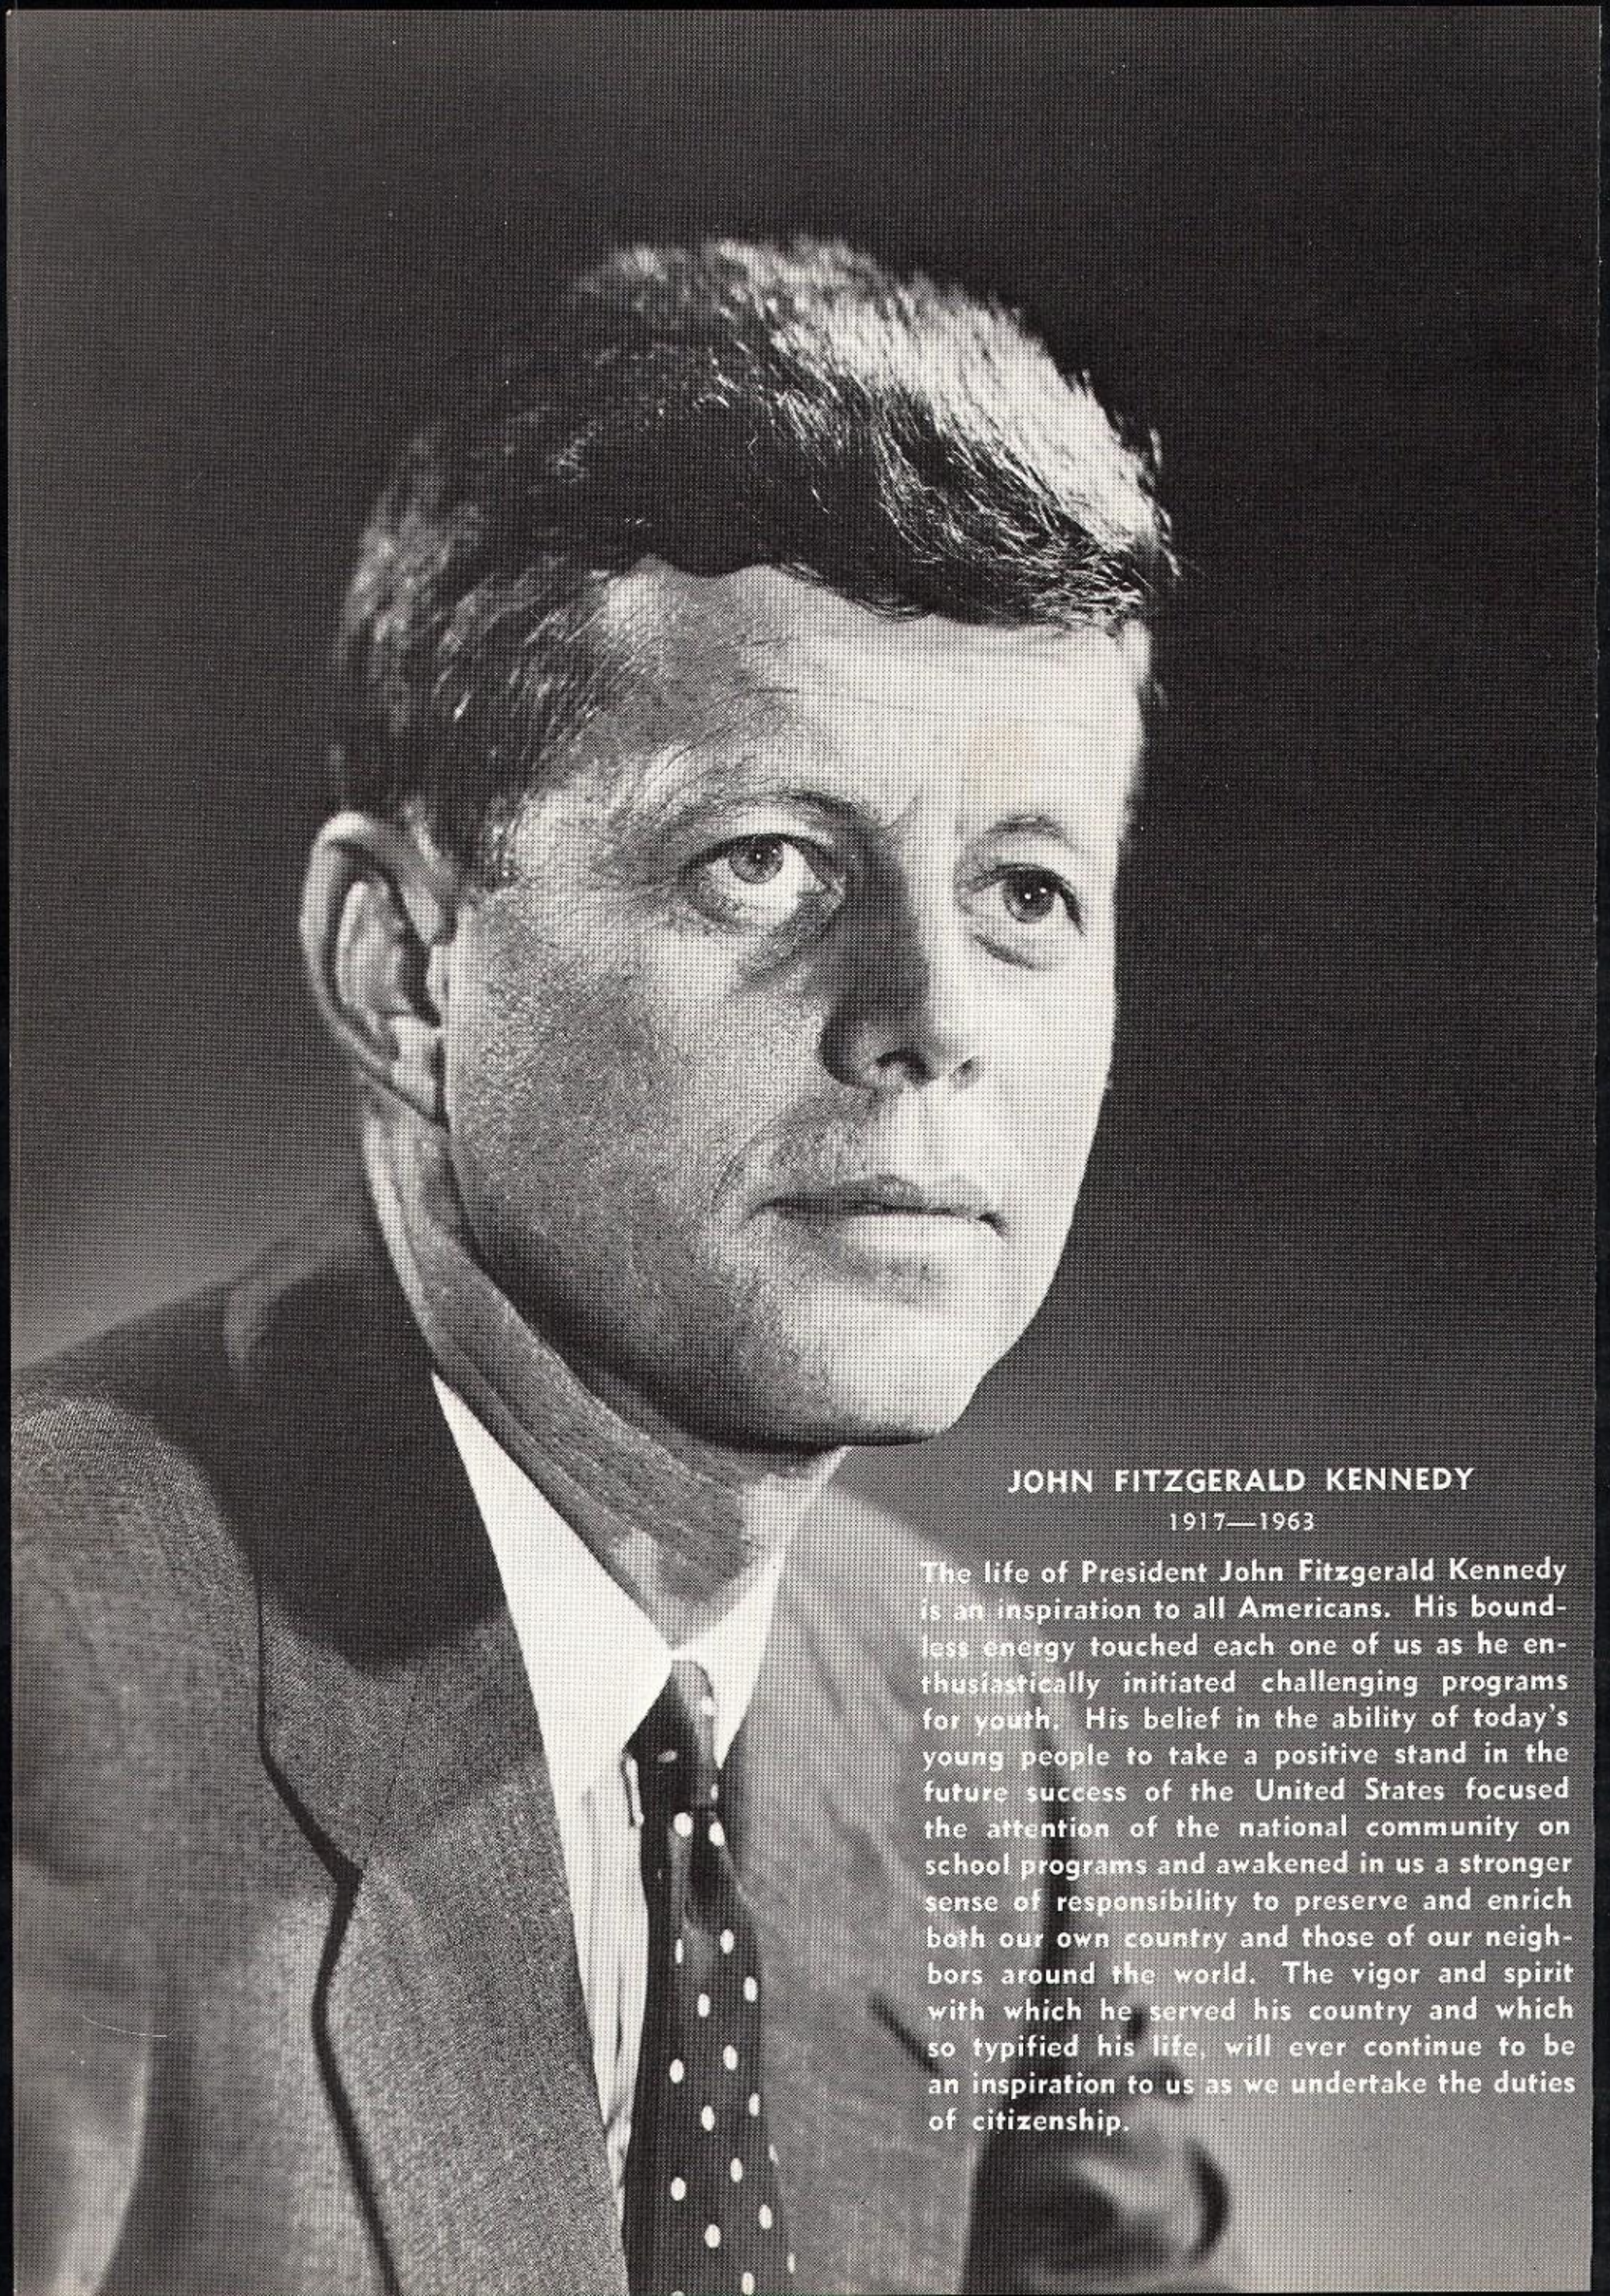
SCHOOL AND COMMUNITY



JOHN FITZGERALD KENNEDY

1917—1963

The life of President John Fitzgerald Kennedy is an inspiration to all Americans. His boundless energy touched each one of us as he enthusiastically initiated challenging programs for youth. His belief in the ability of today's young people to take a positive stand in the future success of the United States focused the attention of the national community on school programs and awakened in us a stronger sense of responsibility to preserve and enrich both our own country and those of our neighbors around the world. The vigor and spirit with which he served his country and which so typified his life, will ever continue to be an inspiration to us as we undertake the duties of citizenship.

Music Heralds the Season

"Now hark and hear this word of cheer" . . . "Jesus Christ is born!" . . . "Sing gloria in excelsis!" . . . "et in terra pax hominibus" . . . "Said the night wind to the little lamb" . . . "Silent Night, Holy Night" . . . "I heard the bells on Christmas Day" . . . "Cum Sancto Spiritu, in gloria Dei Patris. Amen."

Hi–Music Sponsors Events

Officers of the Hi-Music Sponsors, Mrs. Glaser, treasurer; Mrs. Burke, vice-president; Mrs. Brandt, president and Mrs. Johnson, corresponding secretary, discuss the events in the Christmas program with Mr. Grammer.

The annual Christmas program, presented by Regional's chorus and band, is one of the events supported by Hi-Music. This year, the organization paid for a string ensemble which accompanied the Tower Singers in their rendition of Vivaldi's Gloria.

Stimulating an interest in music both in the school and community, Hi-Music Sponsors support Regional's music program. Highlighting their activities, a luncheon-auction was held to benefit South Pacific and other projects. Trophies to deserving seniors, a scholarship to a graduate planning a career in music, trips for chorus and band and an assembly program are all made possible by this active organization.

Guests at Regional's Cultural Series enjoy worthwhile and rewarding programs. Sponsored by the Student Government Association, these unique programs expose both students and adult members of the community to various aspects of culture.

Talented performers entertain interested audiences of students and adults at our Cultural Series programs. Designed to appeal to various interests and age groups, these programs offer cultural entertainment to the school and community in the form of musical presentations, art demonstrations, films and lectures.

Programs Provide Culture

Performing at a Cultural Series, a pianist and a tenor tell the story of America through folk songs.

The lively "Bamboo Butlers" entertain the audience with barbershop melodies.

President of the Board of Education, Mr. Adamson formally presents the new budget at a Home and School Association meeting. Prior to this meeting, the Board held four special open sessions in which the public was encouraged to participate in discussions of the proposed budget.

Board Advances Education

Mrs. Beatrice Webb performs her numerous duties as Secretary to the Board of Education.

At the annual Board of Education-Faculty Dinner, board members become better acquainted with the school administrators and faculty members in an informal, relaxing atmosphere.

The quality of the school, its character and its cost are the foremost concerns of the Board members as they interpret what kind of school the public wants. Board of Education policies are established to provide the best possible educational opportunities and facilities for all of Regional's students.

Boosters Support Bulldogs

Mr. White, president of the Bulldog Boosters, talks over the past season with Coach Rosati at the annual Football Banquet. A similar banquet is given in the spring, honoring participants in basketball, baseball and track. Other Booster activities include publishing football programs, sponsoring buses for away games and girls' bowling teams, buying uniform jackets for cheerleaders and presenting awards to the girl and boy voted the most valuable athlete of the year.

Coach Dell'Omo proudly recalls outstanding characteristics of this year's champions.

Supporting and encouraging greater participation in our athletic program, Bulldog Boosters sponsor many activities. From giving banquets honoring athletes to awarding a scholarship to a deserving senior planning to major in physical education, this organization is essential in promoting school spirit.

For members of the Varsity and Junior Varsity squads, it is a night of recollection and recognition. Coaches give special acknowledgement to seniors for their efforts in playing ball for Regional.

Also enjoying recognition at the banquet are the cheerleaders and twirlers, who faithfully supported the boys throughout the season.

School and Citizens Unite at

Gracious women devote their time to serving refreshments at all of the Association's functions.

Conducting a meeting of the Home and School Association are Mrs. Werle treasurer; Mrs. Blair, president; and Mrs. Fearns, recording secretary. Forming an organized body ready to serve the high school, this Association strives, through meetings and special programs, to foster better relation between the home and school.

Eager to bring parents and the school closer together, members of the Home and School Association sponsor Community Night. During this informative evening interested citizens enjoy the opportunity to observe first-hand the diverse projects and classroom activities which are so much a part of student life.

Community Night finds active members of Home and School busily raising money for Canteen, A.F.S., Boy's State, awards and scholarships.

SENIORS

Farewell Message to Class of '64

JOHN F. KINNEY, JR., ED.D.
SUPERINTENDENT

TELEPHONE 842-1598

RUMSON - FAIR HAVEN REGIONAL HIGH SCHOOL
RUMSON, NEW JERSEY

January 20, 1964

Dear Seniors:

From the time that you were freshmen I have had serious reservations as to whether or not your class would ever function as a unit. My fears increased during your first two years in high school as cliques formed and vied with each other for attention. Since school spirit is determined by the current senior class, I became more apprehensive as your final year approached.

But, low and behold, as juniors you changed. From a badly divided class you emerged as a strong, cohesive group. I don't know when it occurred, who did it or why it happened. However, the fact remains that the Class of 1964 has worked harder, cooperated better, instilled more spirit in one year than all the other classes have in four.

I am indebted to you for making school spirit a vital, meaningful part of our life at Regional.

Sincerely yours,

John F. Kinney, Jr.

John F. Kinney, Jr.

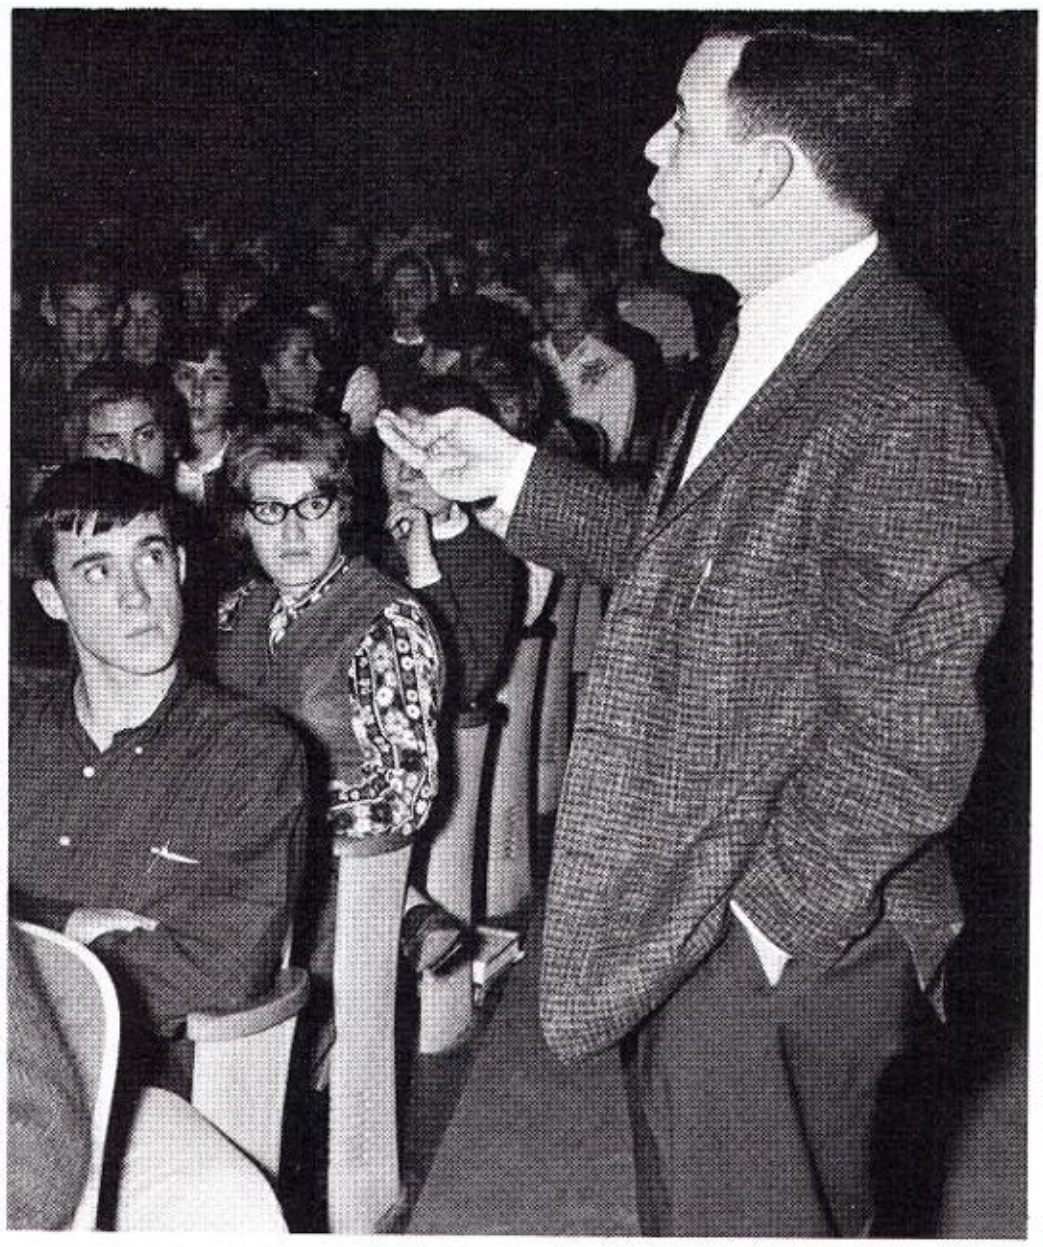
Leadership, an eagerness to work and achieve, and a concern for the well-being of the class are the qualities characteristic of the senior class officers. Ken Thompson, president; Vicki Barrett and Martha Robinson, co-vice-presidents; Allyn Bennett, secretary; and Shep McHenry, treasurer; all have devoted at least two years of unselfish work towards the success of the class of '64.

Senior Officers and Advisor

From setting up hotdog stands and directing the hanging of our Prom ceiling to giving us advice and guidance in both class and individual conferences, Mr. Dell'-Omo has worked unceasingly for us, the class of 1964. His genuine, personal interest in all that we do is exemplified by his pitching in to work beside us in our endeavors. No matter how busy, he always has time for an informal talk about our problems. For his countless contributions, we of the senior class wish to express our gratitude and deepest thanks.



India's Gift to Regional

Promoting international understanding between our country and India, Sarala Krishna makes Rumson-Fair Haven Regional her home for a year. Sponsored by the local chapter of the American Field Service, she has become the third "daughter" of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Hinckley of Fair Haven. Sarala is enchanted by her many new experiences and discoveries—such as snow!

Delightfully feminine in her brightly-colored saris, our charming A.F.S. student brings with her the intrigue and mystery of India. Eager to satisfy the inquisitiveness of her new American friends, Sarala strengthens the ties which bind teenagers the world over.

Our Indian miss learns about America both in school and on class trips.

Her sweet, unaffected personality has made Sarala well-liked by all who know her.

Gone away is freshman year
With shakers topped
With purple and white;

Racing away with the first
Day's fear, far
From memory's sight;

And gone with it, too,
Is that second year feeling
Of "middleness"—so far to go!

Days passing by
With a normal routine
Each one seeming more slow

Until junior year, when you've
Made it halfway—
There's much more to do

And you like it that way.
Sturbridge and rain
Is a mixture well known;

Tropical gardens, from a gym floor grown
In a matter of days,
Backed by mountains of stone.

In everyone's mind was that last
Senior year, we've made it,
But now must look on to the fear

Of wondering and waiting, to see
What's in store after "partying's" done
And school closes its door.

Now is the time that we are all one—
Soon, very soon, we'll be chasing the sun
To our separate ends, our separate lives
And our very separate selves.

Energetic Class of '64 Unites to

Hours and hours of good hard work were put into our unique waterfall by Miss Ponti and her crew of able helpers. Undaunted by aggravating difficulties, they refused to give up and the results were absolutely breathtaking.

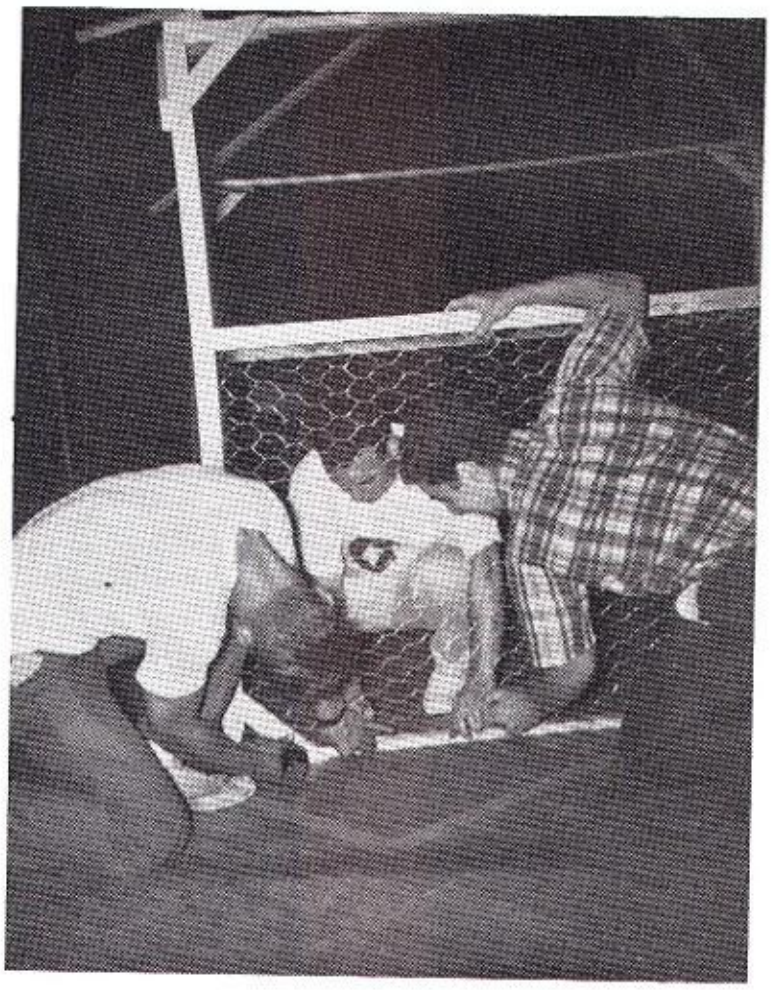
As the cold winter months melted into spring, all our thoughts were turned towards our biggest project of the year —the Junior Prom. As soon as our Hawaiian theme was selected, every member of the class pitched in to produce the best prom Regional High School ever saw. Every mind was filled with thoughts of huts, the waterfall, flowers, blue ceiling, and leis. Through a mutual interest, our class merged into a united body rather than scattered groups of sundry students.

Fast fingers flew and the bare wooden frames and tall bunches of reeds began to emerge as authentic Hawaiian huts.

Produce Best Junior Prom Ever

Dozens of willing girls worked tediously for weeks beforehand to produce the lovely poppies and orchids which peeped out from everywhere.

Mr. Dell'Omo was always ready and willing to help wherever he was needed. He shared our anxiety and anticipation and was just as proud as we when the fruits of our efforts were realized.



Boys and girls alike tackled the monstrous job of cutting, loading and transporting reeds from the swamps to the sides and tops of our native huts.

Romantic Hawaiian Atmosphere

Before going into the Hawaiian wonderland to spend an unforgettable evening, Martha checks to make sure that everything is under control.

The long months in preparing for the Junior Prom have come to a climax as the Hawaiian Eve begins. The first glimpse of the floral arrangements of poppies and orchids, the magnificence of the waterfall and the soft glow of colored lights on dancing couples create a truly breathtaking sight. The warm and happy moments are too short as the couples dance to the last song and say good-bye to a wonderful night of cherished memories.

Happy Prom couples gaze with admiration and awe at our beautiful waterfall and pool. Ivy and waterlilies add to the realistic effect.

Provides Unforgettable Night

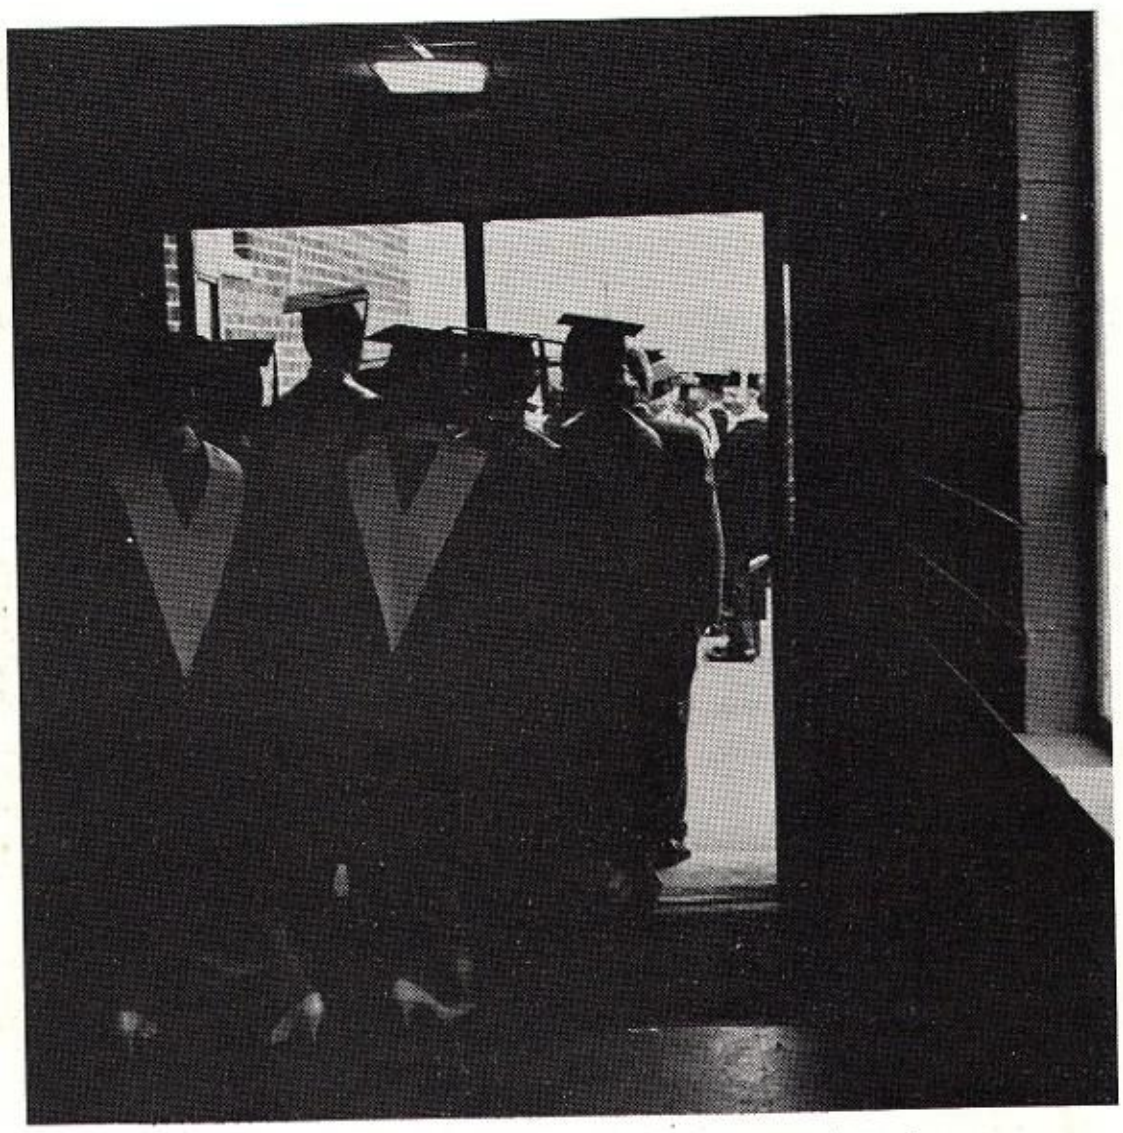
As they promenade around the dance floor, girls get a chance to display their gorgeous dresses and each boy shows off his own "princess." Finally, a princess and prince are chosen and a court of lovelies smilingly watches the coronation.

After the Prom itself, the Splash Party at Trade Winds attracted many fun-loving teenagers and provided much enjoyment and fun.

Graduation

Elated yet pensive Daisy Chain girls are making final adjustments in preparation for their traditional march before the seniors.

As we remember old friends in years to come, autographs will mean so much to us.



Nervous and excited teenagers, we pass through this door for the last time . . . as students of Regional.

As the climax of our high sch days draws nearer, we face with mixed and varied emotic

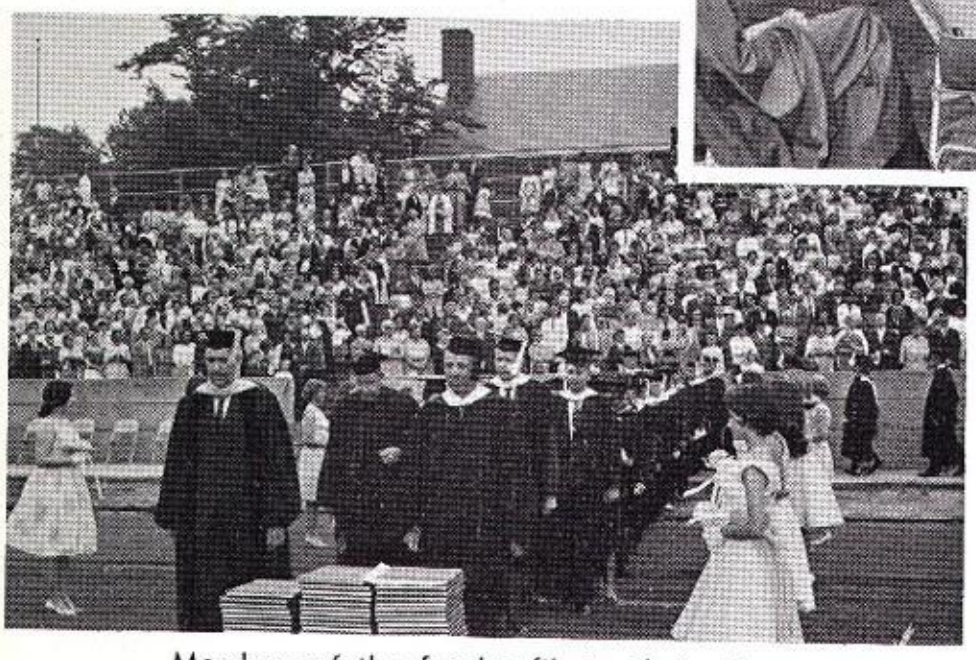
Night

All is finally ready for Dr. Kinney to open the graduation ceremony.



Members of the faculty file to their places.

Commencement is, as the word implies, a beginning. It is the beginning of a new phase in our lives as young adults, with new experiences, new challenges and new people to meet. We are happy, yet a little sad, because this is the last time we will be together as a class.

any unforgettable memories
ter through our minds.

The Daisy Chain precedes the faculty and graduates on this most important night. Our parents, relatives, and friends watch the proceedings with pride.
